been affecting this model over recent years a massive transfer of development activities from the USA and Europe to a skilled labor force in service providing countries This transformation has been driven by the demands of a global business climate seeking to increase the value delivery of IT investment However the ability to realize this value can prove problematic in practice Of particular concern are the hidden costs of globally distributed models of working such as understanding and communicating the true business needs across organizational and cultural boundaries To address such issues offshore outsourcing requires different support from in house development and this means adapting familiar techniques processes and tools to this setting as well as perhaps creating innovative new ones Coupled with this industry transformation there is hence a pressing need to re-examine those software engineering approaches that either facilitate or impede this model of working With an inevitable focus on the economy in 2009 business decisions regarding the sourcing of software development projects will come under close scrutiny It will become increasingly critical to design global partnerships that both clarify costs and enable delivery on business needs
