Islamic Fundamentalism in Afghanistan Graham E. Fuller,1991 The Afghan fundamentalist Islamist movement which has been active in Afghan politics since the late 1960s has been powerfully reinforced by the Soviet invasion and subsequently by the mujahidin s sensational victory over the Red Army This report reviews the foundations of Islamist strength considers whether Islamists will come to power reviews weaknesses of Islamist parties and considers implications for the United States if an Islamist regime were to come to power The author concludes that although the Islamists have established a permanent place in Afghan politics their position is likely to change as a new postcommunist phase begins in Afghanistan The probability that radical Islamists will exercise exclusive power in Afghanistan is slight but they will always be a factor in Afghan politics and their exclusion from governance could be the root of prolonged civil conflict Finally while radical Islamists will remain cool to the United States they are unlikely to vehemently oppose it under any circumstances      Current Bibliographical Information Dag Hammarskjöld Library,1988      Bibliography of Asian Studies ,1985      Islamic Leviathan Seyyed Vali Reza Nasr,2001 Islamization is commonly seen as the work of Islamist movements who have forced their ideology on ruling regimes and other hapless social actors There is little doubt that ruling regimes and disparate social and political actors alike are pushed in the direction of Islamic politics by Islamist forces However Islamist activism and its revolutionary and utopian rhetoric only partly explain this trend Here Nasr argues that the state itself plays a key role in embedding Islam in the politics of Muslim countries Focusing on Malaysia and Pakistan Nasr argues that the turn to Islam is a facet of the state s drive to establish hegemony over society and expand its powers and control      Zia's Pakistan Craig Baxter,1985-11-14
