Bititci, Allan S. Carrie, 2013-06-05 Today the Scottish electronics industry employs 40 000 people directly and a further 30 000 in the supply infrastructure There are now more than 550 electronic manufacturing and supplier companies in Silicon Glen In terms of the contribution to the economy electronics is by far the most valuable industry Its value in 1996 was approximately 10 billion and accounted for more than half of Scotland's exports The major product groupings within the industry include PCs laptops and workstations Disk drives cable harnessing Printers keyboards and peripherals Semiconductor devices and PCBs TV VCRs CDs stereos and other consumer electronics Cellular phones and telecommunications products ATM and funds transfer systems Networking and security systems Navigation and sonar systems Microwave products Power supplies Software and compilers Many of these companies are multi national OEMs who came to Scotland as inward investing companies Early inward investing companies were from USA followed by companies from Japan and more recently from Taiwan and Korea An important segment of the industry is involved in the manufacture of computers including IBM Compaq Digital and Sun In fact approximately 40% of the PCs sold in Europe are built in Scotland With five of the world's top eight computer manufacturers locating a manufacturing base in Scotland there has been an attraction for foreign companies keen to provide service for these multinationals In 1995/96 the supply base output was worth 1 Die strategische Rolle von Produktionsstandorten in Hochlohnländern Daniel Tykal, 2009-07-06 The topic of this thesis is the role of a lead factory with emphasis on its configuration and coordination aspects The basis for this dissertation was established by benchmarking 33 companies During this project the main focus was on the relevance of lead factories in high wage countries The global and dynamic business environment requires many companies to pursue hybrid strategies that balance efficiency global innovation and local responsiveness The allocation of roles among the sites is expected to enhance the leveraging and building of competences within the manufacturing network A literature review shows that a wide range of scientists from different disciplines have made a significant contribution to our understanding of site roles An analysis of all typologies shows that nearly every typology includes a role that equals the definition of the lead factory However not a single framework presents a concrete description of configuration and coordination elements In this thesis a model of a lead factory approach is deduced from existing role typologies and from a consideration of resourced based aspects of multinational companies This model reflects the strategic function of production as well as the multidimensional target setting of the company The practical contribution lies in the development of applicable configuration and coordination aspects that support companies in making the most of their manufacturing capabilities Using the framework the strategic relevance of manufacturing sites in high wage countries becomes visible The theoretical contribution lies in the conceptualization of a general framework of lead factories that integrates several factories and functions and reflects different aspects of Strategic Management Veränderungen in den japanischen Wertschöpfungsstrukturen Ute Roßmann, 2013-04-17 Ute Roßmann analysiert die Veränderungen von vertikalen keiretsu durch Verbundgruppen entlang der Wertschöpfungskette japanischer Unternehmen infolge des Anpassungsdrucks durch Rezession und beschleunigte Innovationszyklen und zeigt dass die vertikalen keiretsu als Gestaltungsmuster für Produktionsnetzwerke in Asien in den meisten Fällen weiterhin relevant sind
