PICTURE TAKING INFORMATION

Lighting conditions: The electric eye sets short exposures in bright light and longer exposures in dim light. In sunlight, prevent direct rays of the sun from striking the lens. In very dim light, you may not be able to hold the camera steady enough. Use Tripod Mount #111, which allows you to attach the camera to a tripod, or to rest it on a firm surface.

Taking pictures in hot and cold weather: In cold weather, a loaded camera should be kept warm in a pocket except when it is being used. At temperatures below 60°F (15°C), put each picture into a warm pocket as soon as it comes out of the camera, but take care not to bend or crush it as it develops. In hot weather, shield the picture from direct sunlight as it develops. In very hot weather, pictures may be lighter than normal; in very cold weather, they may be darker than normal. Adjust the exposure with the Lighten/Darken control. The film, or a loaded camera, should never be stored in a hot place, such as the glove compartment of a car.

The Lighten/Darken control: In normal lighting conditions, the electric eye automatically sets the camera for a well exposed picture with the L/D control at the Normal position, as shown. For a darker picture, turn the L/D control so you can see more black on the dial; for a lighter picture, turn it so more white shows. For a small change, turn it one mark; for a bigger change, turn it farther. The L/D control resets to Normal when you close the camera.
