Writing Tip 5

There are five ways to begin an essay. One way is to use sound or motion words to set the stage for your writing.

Dear Parents,

Writeable, writeable, writeable! Know, know, know! This is the most of what I know. Children who write change their minds, even, and even again. It is hard to write. There are five ways to begin an essay. One of them is to use sound or motion words to set the stage for your writing.

Your Child's Teacher

We did this in class!

What is your favorite game? Write the introduction to an essay about your favorite.

Parents, please help!

Read with your child each week and discuss the writing on the other side of this assignment. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be a good example of the kind of writing you would like to see in his or her writing. Each assignment should be an hour or more of work.

Directions:

Authors often choose to begin their writing with sound and motion words so that they can set the mood for their writing.

Fun Break! What mood did you feel when you read, "Just Shout"? Did you think you were in the mood to shout? Or did you think the writer was trying to be funny? Try to set a mood with your choice of sound or motion words.

1 What animal would you choose for a pet? Why would you choose that animal?

2 Write a story about a time you rode something.

This assignment is due at school on _____
