

Worship Formation & Liturgical Resources: Frequently Asked Questions

What is the meaning and use of liturgical colors?

The variety and richness of colors provided suggest an ecology of liturgical practices from across the church.
These resources should not be considered the final authority on the topic, but rather guides that are to be considered in light of local context and personal conviction.
The resources herein hope to reproduce the comprehensive system (only in the most relevant or most relevant ways).

In the Christian tradition colors are used for vestments and paraments (see also, "What are vestments and paraments and why are they used?"), but a simplified system of colors developed only gradually and subsequently used through the Middle Ages. Today, the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America provides a system of colors for use by its congregations; for the most part, the same system is also used by Roman and Anglican churches, at least in the United States; and by many churches around the world, including the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Canada.

Many of the colors associated with the seasons are closely linked with the seasons of Christmas in the Northern Hemisphere. Christmas in the Southern Hemisphere with significant the church year differently in that context, perhaps calling forth different color associations. It is also helpful to realize that colors have different associations across the globe, just as they have had different associations even the course of the church's history. For example, white is the color North Americans and European Christians typically associate with Christmas and Easter, the color white signifying the purity of Christ, light or joy. In many Eastern cultures, however, white connotes mourning. Red, associated with energy, blood or the power of things in Western culture, is the color associated with purity in India.

The colors serve to show the worship space, and as well attention to the season of the season or festival being celebrated. A full summary of their usage, according to the church year, follows.

Advent Blue is associated with Advent, suggesting hope. This association originated in Scandinavia, probably because purple dye was too expensive for churches to use. Some associations use purple in Advent, a color associated with royalty as the church awaits the newborn King (note: this is a different meaning than when it is used for Mary and Mother).

Christmas White, calling to mind the purity of the newborn Christ, and as well light and joy in Him. Some also use Gold.
