In this inimitable book, Fred Dervin continues to explore the notion of interculturality by offering a novel and critical exploration of the often overlooked role of money, especially within the broad field of Intercultural Communication Education and Research (ICER). Adopting a robust interdisciplinary lens and drawing on concrete examples, the author combines, for example, financial education, literature, philosophy, and sociology to critique the economic and moral dimensions of global interactions in today's confused and confusing world. From examining the commodification of intercultural relations to proposing shared responsibility and ethical reasoning, Money and Interculturality: A Theory provides a fresh perspective on how money shapes and often distorts interculturality Based on a unique integration of contemporary historical and literary insights Dervin questions and deepens our understanding of interculturality while equipping readers with new vocabulary and frameworks to address the harsh realities of global unpredictable and power laden communication This somewhat provocative book represents an essential reference for educators practitioners researchers and students seeking to investigate the connections between money and interculturality Fantasy Brian Attebery,2022 Fantasy has become a dominant mode of storytelling and it mirrors our experiences and anxieties better than any representation of the merely real This book poses two central questions about fantastic storytelling how can it be meaningful if it doesn t claim to represent things as they are and what kind of change can it make in the world Humanities as a Resource and Inspiration for Humanizing Business Michael Thate,László Zsolnai,2023-08-08 This book highlights the relevance of the grand traditions of the humanities as an untapped resource for business world problems In a time where the humanities are viewed as in decline or in threat of collapse altogether this book enacts and extends the best of the humanities toward prevailing challenges within the complex realities of our current cultural moment The book presents how the humanities can contribute to humanizing business and management It explores and discusses various ways to integrate the views and approaches of the humanities in business and management research practice and education responding to the unprecedented challenges of the Anthropocene The relations between humanities and social sciences is also discussed as models and theories of business and management are based on insights of social sciences The book is an outcome of the Humanities for Business project of Princeton University Faith and Work Initiative the European SPES Institute Leuven and the Business Ethics Center of Corvinus University of Budapest It is of great value to researchers students policy makers and research institutions interested in using humanities for renewing and humanizing business and management Doing Process Research in Organizations Barbara Simpson,Line Revsbæk,2022 With chapters that actively manifest the doing reading and writing of process research this book takes up the challenge that process philosophy and process ontology pose to conventional entity based empirical research even daring to question the relevance of methodology in contemporary process organisation studies Women Writing in a Time of War, 1642-1689 Karen Britland,2025-05-26 Women Writing in a Time of War 1642 1689 explores the stereotype of the apolitical woman who was nevertheless valuable as a messenger or secret agent during the English civil wars not least because her imagined lack of political acumen obscured her partisan behaviour It examines the interconnections between early modern men and women s cultural production analyzing the secret writing and communication strategies employed by agents and spies during the wars and arguing that an attention to clandestine modes of writing provides new insights into women s literary production during the conflict Encouraging us to understand such literary production differently Britland offers a new history of early modern political writing one deeply imbricated in but by no means exclusively focused on the literary work and experiences of women the non elite and the racially marginalized in early modern England and its colonial trade networks An attentiveness to the narrative strategies deployed by women writers during the English civil wars also helps us to think about the long histories subtending our own reading and writing practices Not only does the relative invisibility of female agents in our own historiography reveal a persistent tendency in contemporary criticism to overlook women s contributions to major historical events but the book argues the early modern instrumentalization of women s bodies particularly the bodies of women from non elite backgrounds who acted as couriers within elite communication networks acts as a caution against adopting contemporary methods of reading particularly computer aided reading that can downplay or ignore the contributions of women and non elite people This book makes a case for not separating our discussions of women from those of men nor for privileging analyses of the rich over those of the poor at the same time as it remains deeply embedded in the literary material and merchant cultures of later seventeenth century England
