Redefining Productivity for Social Development and Well-being Gloria Rhea Geller, Fiona Douglas, 2007. The dominant market-oriented definition of productivity excludes a wide range of human activities. With that definition, value is often given to activities that may be detrimental to the health and well-being of the human population and the natural world. Drawing upon a variety of disciplines, the authors in this book seek to redefine productivity in terms of social development and well-being, raising questions about what is produced by whom and to what end, and offering recommendations for effective social policy change.
