Identity A Reader For Writers:

Identity John Scenters-Zapico, 2021-09 In the United States we are constantly defining and redefining who we are to each other As quick as we are to pull ourselves together as Americans in times of war or natural disaster we also incessantly define the other at times favorably at other times not so much We band together as us to defend our freedoms and safety from outside threats yet we also move away from each other and maintain our differences our uniqueness our independence We are a nation of commonalities differences natives immigrants and visitors We recognize that our strength is our ability to intelligently negotiate our independence and dependence and similarities and differences with each other The negotiation process takes place because we are a nation of readers and writers We inform ourselves to understand issues important to us and we then share our thoughts with others trying to inform or persuade them of what we believe is the correct way to understand or act in a situation To understand our ever changing society the issues important to it and take stands on issues we by necessity must read To get our views out there we write In order to read and write well we must understand rhetorical principles our roles and identities and the writing processes that are the foundations of literacy and writing practices Why learn to read and write or become more sophisticated readers and writers Take a moment to think about what we could not do if we could not read or write Could we shop online Could we read the text that helps as we play a video game Could we read or send an e mail a text or tweet or post to our Facebook or Skype accounts The answer to all of these is No Nothing in these environments would make any sense Imagine trying to make a r sum or write a research paper or lab report Our world and work possibilities would diminish substantially from how we experience them now The more schooling we have the better and more varied are our reading and writing skills and from these refined skills more opportunities exist for us The processes that we go through to become highly literate are many and complex Traditional literacies the abilities to read and write and digital or electronic literacies the abilities to communicate and understand using multimodal means are a vast network of possibilities and challenges that we must learn at increasing levels of sophistication and complexity Throughout our years in school we will need to advance our critical reading and writing skills through study and practice Each chapter s title in Identity A Reader for Writers is a question about our identity from What s in a Name The Role of Language and Identity to Where Do You Draw the Line Privacy Socializing and Life without Boundaries The Second edition of Identity includes three new chapters Chapter 6 explores readings that help us talk about gender Who Decides Gender Notions of Gender Identity Chapter 7 How Are Your Political Views Formed Political Identity Alliance Exclusion helps us find common language among the complexities in identifying and taking political stances and Chapter 8 How Can I Become a Better Writer guides us to better understand what is involved in transitioning from student writers to experienced writers Becoming Readers and Writers Christopher J. Writing and Identity Roz Ivani?, 1998 Writing is not just about conveying content but also about the representation of self One of the reasons people find writing difficult is that they do not feel comfortable with the me they are portraying in their writing Academic writing in particular often poses a conflict of identity for students in higher education because the self which is inscribed in academic discourse feels alien to them The main claim of this book is that writing is an act of identity in which people align themselves with socio culturally shaped subject positions and thereby play their part in reproducing or challenging dominant practices and discourses and the values beliefs and interests which they embody The first part of the book reviews recent understandings of social identity of the discursive construction of identity of literacy and identity and of issues of identity in research on academic writing The main part of the book is based on a collaborative research project about writing and identity with mature age students providing a case study of one writer's dilemmas over the presentation of self a discussion of the way in which writers' life histories shape their presentation of self in writing an interview based study of issues of ownership and of accommodation and resistance to conventions for the presentation of self linguistic analysis of the ways in which multiple often contradictory interests values beliefs and practices are inscribed in discourse conventions which set up a range of possibilities for selfhood for writers The book ends with implications of the study for research on writing and identity and for the learning and teaching of academic writing The book will be of interest to students and researchers in the fields of social identity literacy discourse analysis rhetoric and composition studies and to all those concerned to understand what is involved in academic writing in order to provide wider access to higher education

Diagnostic Writing Assessment Ute Knoch, 2009 The diagnostic assessment of writing is an important aspect of language testing which has often been neglected in the literature However it is an area which poses special challenges to practioners both in the classroom and in large scale testing situations This book presents a study which set out to develop and validate a rating scale specifically designed for the diagnostic assessment of writing in an academic English setting The scale was developed by analysing a large number of writing performances produced by both native speakers of English and learners of English as an additional language The rating scale was then validated using both quantitative and qualitative methods The study showed that a detailed data based rating scale is more valid and more useful for diagnostic purposes than the more commonly used impressionistic rating scale
