ABSTRACT

This article is an investigation of the connotative meaning of the names used in selected Catholic hymns. The meaning of the names is analysed within the theoretical framework of the conceptual metaphor developed by Lakoff and Johnson (2000) in their seminal work, Metaphors we live by, and thereafter modified into the cognitive theory of metaphor. The study aims to demonstrate that for religious relevance and indigenisation, Catholicism adapted in Lifela tsa Bakriste particular traditional Sesotho aspects in order to express to Basotho the nature and essence of God, Jesus Christ, the Church and other aspects. The article concludes that Lifela tsa Bakriste, as collected by Skhakhane (1985), is an acculturation of Catholicism and traditional Sesotho poetry.

African Perspectives on Literary Translation Judith Inggs, Ella Wehrmeyer, 2021-03-03 This collection serves as a showcase for literary translation research with a focus on African perspectives highlighting theoretical and methodological developments in the discipline while shedding further light on the literary landscape in Africa The book offers a framework for understanding key approaches and topics in literary translation situated in the African context covering foundational concepts as well as new directions within the field The first half of the volume focuses on the translation product exploring such topics as translation strategies literary genres and self translation while the second half examines process and reception allowing for an in depth look at agency habitus and ethics Each chapter is structured to allow for the introduction of a given theoretical aspect of literary translation followed by a summary of a completed research project with an African focus showing theory in practice offering a model for readers to build their own literary translation research projects while also underscoring the range of perspectives and unique challenges to literary translation work in Africa This unique volume is a key resource for students and scholars in translation studies giving visibility to African perspectives on literary translation while pointing the way forward for future research directions Arts & Humanities Citation Index ,1991 Metaphor in Biblical Translation Simon Tebbit, University of Western Australia, 2013 Truncated abstract Conceptual Metaphor Theory offers significant insights into metaphor in translation One major insight comes from the notion that words used in metaphorical expressions are not individual linguistic expressions but are outward manifestations of conceptual metaphors If a text contains linguistic expressions which are manifestations of the same conceptual metaphor they can therefore be considered parts of a whole This theoretical understanding makes for a more coherent strategy that can be employed when analysing metaphor in translation in that it takes into account the tension between the individual metaphorical expression and the overarching conceptual metaphor within a text Following a survey of conceptual metaphor theories and of the translation approaches to metaphor this dissertation integrates the major insights from Conceptual Metaphor Theory into a model which I propose as a means for analysing how certain metaphorical concepts have been translated in the Fourth Gospel In order to define the corpus I survey the history of the Italian Bible Although there are several works on the translations of the Bible into Italian there has yet to be a coherent history of the Italian Bible My dissertation therefore includes a history of the Italian Bible from the manuscript tradition until the present day For the analysis of metaphor I select a corpus of modern Italian Bibles from the Catholic Protestant and Ecumenical traditions published in the 20th and 21st centuries I apply the model to my analysis of two metaphorical concepts The first JESUS IS THE VINE is found in JOHN 15 1 16 For this metaphorical concept I discuss the major Sitz im Leben before analysing the translations of the corpus I conduct a second analysis on the cosmic trial The Fourth Gospel as a heavenly lawsuit has been explored by several Johannine scholars In my dissertation I present the cosmic trial as a metaphorical concept and I focus specifically on two entailments I
