Sikkema-de Jong,2022-05-03 Human Movement and Motor Control in the Natural Environment Peter A Federolf,Maurice Mohr,Thorsten Stein,Gert-Jan Pepping,Steven van Andel,Gillian Weir,2023-06-08 The basic understanding of human movement and control of human movement stems largely from laboratory measurements where human movement can be quantified with high precision and accuracy but where the artificial environment compromises ecological validity A good example for this issue was demonstrated in a recent investigation specifically that the walking gait pattern of healthy individuals in a laboratory changed as a function of how many researchers were present during the experiment Observations like these underscore that study volunteers adapt their behavior to the specific laboratory environment and warrant the question of how well we can transfer our lab based understanding of gait patterns and the underlying neuromuscular control system to walking during daily living Another research area where lab based movement assessments have led to conflicting findings is the field of sports injury prevention Many neuromuscular training programs have been shown to be effective in reducing the sport injury rate in athletes by 30 50% or more in a variety of different multi directional sports Nevertheless lab based assessments of the same athletes who completed those training programs were often not able to detect improvements in motor control of sport specific movements or a reduction in joint loading two factors thought to be closely linked with sport injury risk This disconnect suggests that lab based assessments of movement and motor control are often poor indicators of player behavior during real game scenarios and may limit our ability to screen athletes for injury risk or monitor their progress in rehabilitation These examples highlight that we should strive for the assessment and investigation of human movement and motor control in natural environments i e where individuals patients athletes or other groups of interest perform explore and interact under real world conditions

Adult Literacy Robert Edward Campbell,1987 Whither Opportunity? Greg J. Duncan,Richard J. Murnane,2011-09-01 As the incomes of affluent and poor families have diverged over the past three decades so too has the educational performance of their children But how exactly do the forces of rising inequality affect the educational attainment and life chances of low income children In Whither Opportunity a distinguished team of economists sociologists and experts in social and education policy examines the corrosive effects of unequal family resources disadvantaged neighborhoods insecure labor markets and worsening school conditions on K 12 education This groundbreaking book illuminates the ways rising inequality is undermining one of the most important goals of public education the ability of schools to provide children with an equal chance at academic and economic success The most ambitious study of educational inequality to date Whither Opportunity analyzes how social and economic conditions surrounding schools affect school performance and children s educational achievement The book shows that from earliest childhood parental investments in children s learning affect reading math and other attainments later in life Contributor Meredith Phillip finds that between birth and age six wealthier children will have spent as many as 1 300 more hours than poor children on child enrichment activities such as music lessons travel and summer camp Greg Duncan George Farkas and Katherine Magnuson demonstrate that a child from a poor family is two to four times as likely as a child from an affluent family to have classmates with low skills and behavior problems attributes which have a negative effect on the learning of their fellow students As a result of such disparities contributor Sean Reardon finds that the gap between rich and poor children s math and reading achievement scores is now much larger than it was fifty years ago And such income based gaps persist across the school years as Martha Bailey and Sue Dynarski document in their chapter on the growing income based gap in college completion Whither Opportunity also reveals the profound impact of environmental factors on children s educational progress and schools functioning Elizabeth Ananat Anna Gassman Pines and Christina Gibson Davis show that local job losses such as those caused by plant closings can lower the test scores of students with low socioeconomic status even students whose parents have not lost their jobs They find that community wide stress is most likely the culprit Analyzing the math achievement of elementary school children Stephen Raudenbush Marshall Jean and Emily Art find that students learn less if they attend schools with high student turnover during the school year a common occurrence in poor schools And David Kirk and Robert Sampson show that teacher commitment parental involvement and student achievement in schools in high crime neighborhoods all tend to be low For generations of Americans public education provided the springboard to upward mobility This pioneering volume casts a stark light on the ways rising inequality may now be compromising schools functioning and with it the promise of equal opportunity in America
