Analyzing Health Equity Using Household World Bank:

Analyzing Health Equity Using Household Survey Data Adam Wagstaff, Owen O'Donnell, Eddy van Doorslaer, Magnus Lindelow, 2007-11-02 Have gaps in health outcomes between the poor and better off grown Are they larger in one country than another Are health sector subsidies more equally distributed in some countries than others Are health care payments more progressive in one health care financing system than another What are catastrophic payments and how can they be measured How far do health care payments impoverish households Answering questions such as these requires quantitative analysis This in turn depends on a clear understanding of how to measure key variables in the analysis such as health outcomes health expenditures need and living standards It also requires set quantitative methods for measuring inequality and inequity progressivity catastrophic expenditures poverty impact and so on This book provides an overview of the key issues that arise in the measurement of health variables and living standards outlines and explains essential tools and methods for distributional analysis and using worked examples shows how these tools and methods can be applied in the health sector The book seeks to provide the reader with both a solid grasp of the principles underpinning distributional analysis while at the same time offering hands on guidance on how to move from principles to practice The World Bank Research Program, 2005-2007, 2008 This pocket sized reference on key environmental data for over 200 countries includes key indicators on agriculture forestry biodiversity energy emission and pollution and water and sanitation The volume helps establish a sound base of information to help set priorities and measure progress toward environmental sustainability goals

OECD Health Policy Studies Health for Everyone? Social Inequalities in Health and Health Systems OECD, 2019-09-27 Good health is a key component of people's well being It is a value in itself but through its influence on social education and labour market outcomes being in good or bad health has also wider implications on people's chances of leading a fulfilling and productive life Yet even in the OECD countries health inequality persists with severe consequences on the goal of promoting inclusive growth This report documents a comprehensive range of inequalities in health and health systems to the detriment of disadvantaged population groups in a large set of OECD and EU countries Equity and Healthcare Reform in Developing Economies Songül Çınaroğlu, 2020-10-29 Ensuring equity in healthcare is the main concern of health policymakers in order to provide a sustainable health system This concern is more prominent in developing countries due to the scarcity of resources This book provides a comprehensive analysis and discussion on the distributive pattern of out of pocket pharmaceutical expenditures under the health reforms in Turkey and makes comparisons with pharmerging countries Turkey's health reforms began in 2003 to address shortcomings related to financial protection and to improve health outcomes and the quality of healthcare services The primary motivation was to ensure equity in the distribution of health resources and this transformation process led to profound changes in how these resources were used and in health financing in general However there is a lack of knowledge regarding the long term effect of health reforms on the distribution patterns of health expenditures and health service use This book offers a thorough equity analysis of the health financing system affected by this health transformation program Index and curve approaches are used in the equity analysis of pharmaceutical expenditures The book examines the long term effects of health system regulations on the health spending characteristics of households and improves the current understanding of equity in this context It includes extensive international comparisons of healthcare services across a range of developing countries and highlights the significance of ensuring equity for emerging economies The author explores the existing evidence as well as future research directions and provides policy and planning advice for health policymakers to contribute to establishing a more equal health system design Additionally the book will be of interest to scholars and professionals in the fields of health economics public health management and health financing

Industrial Clusters and Micro and Small Enterprises in Africa World Bank,2010-12-30 The World Bank Japan International Cooperation Agency JICA Research Institute and the Foundation for Advanced Studies on International Development FASID in collaboration with researchers affiliated with the African Economic Research Consortium AERC recently conducted a study on Africa s domestic enterprises to improve the understanding of the constraints micro and small enterprises in Africa face in improving productivity and expanding their markets In Africa there are stark performance gaps between domestically owned enterprises and foreign owned enterprises in terms of sales performance productivity and ability to reach distant markets Among others size appears to be a dominant factor in explaining the gap Against this background the study analyzes how naturally formed industrial clusters concentrations of enterprises engaged in same or closely related industrial activities in specific locations could potentially mitigate constraints Africa s micro and small enterprises face and enhance their business performance The study is one of the first comprehensive quantitative inquiries on industrial clusters in Africa The analysis specifically focuses on the role of spontaneously grown clusters of light manufacturing industries based on a set of original case studies of industrial clusters conducted for this research project One of the key findings from the case studies was that cluster based micro and small enterprises are performing better than similar micro and small enterprises outside of the clusters in terms of sales performance and ability to reach distant markets Market access is a leading reason for cluster based enterprises to choose their current locations However cluster based enterprises face another set of unique growth constraints By the very nature of spontaneous agglomeration new enterprises continue to flow to the clusters seeking the profit opportunities and better access to markets at such locations The result can be intense competition in addition to increased congestion Space constraints often impede growth within clusters The lack of alternative locations available for industrial activities in the same cities generic infrastructure bottlenecks and unclear zoning policies and their unpredictable changes limit firms location choices and constrain their mobility While competition should improve efficiency lack of capacity among those competing cluster based enterprises to invest and innovate does not generate growth out of the competition The vast majority of naturally formed clusters of light manufacturing industries in

Africa are still at a survival level where agglomeration externalities are only limited to expand quantity but not quality as we observe in more advanced innovation oriented clusters in elsewhere in the world Existing studies on such natural industrial clusters in Africa have found that the lack of managerial skills among entrepreneurs running micro and small enterprises is a major constraint for innovation and growth in the clusters As a part of this study pilot managerial skills training programs were conducted in two industrial clusters on an experimental basis where a group of randomly selected entrepreneurs within the clusters were given three week long crash course of based management such as bookkeeping marketing business planning and production management The impact evaluation of the experiments showed significant positive impacts of the training programs on value added and gross profits of enterprises Raising the current survival type industrial clusters which have been formed as a coping mechanism to weak investment climate into more dynamic innovating clusters will be an important avenue for fostering growth of micro and small enterprises in Africa While national efforts to improve investment climate and investments in human capital are undoubtedly important there could be more targeted policies to be formulated in complementing general policies to support growth of micro and small domestic enterprises using existing industrial clusters as a natural springboard for their growth In that context the study discusses the merit of cluster based managerial human capital development to build steps toward more innovation oriented clusters the importance of sound spatial planning policy particularly at the local level in the context of urban planning the need to expand market access and economic linkages for industrial clusters including regional integration and linkages with large enterprises
