Food Health Janet Chrzan, John Brett, 2017-02-01 Nutritional Anthropology and public health research and programming have employed similar methodologies for decades many anthropologists are public health practitioners while many public health practitioners have been trained as medical or biological anthropologists Recognizing such professional connections this volume provides in depth analysis and comprehensive review of methods necessary to design plan implement and analyze public health programming using anthropological best practices To illustrate the rationale for use of particular methods each chapter elaborates a case study from the author's own work showing why particular methods were adopted in each case

Eating Fandom CarrieLynn D. Reinhard, Julia E. Largent, Bertha Chin, 2020-10-29 This book considers the practices and techniques fans utilize to interact with different aspects and elements of food cultures With attention to food cultures across nations societies cultures and historical periods the collected essays consider the rituals and values of fan communities as reflections of their food culture whether in relation to particular foods or types of food those who produce them or representations of them Presenting various theoretical and methodological approaches the anthology brings together a series of empirical studies to examine the intersection of two fields of cultural practice and will appeal to sociologists geographers and scholars of cultural studies with interests in fan studies and food cultures

Conversations With Food Dorothy Chansky, Sarah W. Tracy, 2021-02-02 Conversations With Food offers readers an array of essays revealing the power of food and its absence to transform relationships between the human and non human realms to define national colonial and postcolonial cultures to help instantiate race gender and class relations and to serve as the basis for policymaking Food functions in these contexts as items in religious or secular law as objects with which to bargain or over which to fight as literary trope and as a way to improve or harm health individual or collective The anthology ranges from Ancient Greece to the posthuman fairy underworld from the codifying of French culinary heritage to the strategic marketing of 100 calorie snacks from the European famine after the Second World War to the lush and exotic cuisines of culinary tourism today Conversations With Food will engage anyone interested in discovering the disciplinary breadth and depth of food studies The anthology is ideally suited for introductory and advanced courses in food studies as it includes essays in a range of humanities and social science disciplines and each author draws cross disciplinary linkages between their own work and other essays in the volume This thematic and conceptual intercalation when read with the editors introduction makes the collection an exceptionally strong representation of the field of food studies
