CAE OXFORD AVIATION ACADEMY - NAVIGATION I , This text book has been written and published as a reference work to assist students enrolled on an approved EASA Air Transport Pilot Licence ATPL course to prepare themselves for the EASA ATPL theoretical knowledge examinations Nothing in the content of this book is to be interpreted as constituting instruction or advice relating to practical flying

Flight time limitations Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee,2012-05-30 This report examines draft proposals from the European Aviation Safety Agency EASA to change the rules that govern how many hours a pilot can fly The Transport Committee warns that working hours and conditions for pilots and cabin crew must be improved or safety could be at risk Currently the UK implements stricter flight time regulations than some other European countries but under the new rules proposed by the European Aviation Safety Agency the UK would not be able to have its own regime and the UK s current standards would be lowered Fatigue is already an issue in aviation 43% of pilots have reported falling asleep involuntarily at some point whilst on duty under the UK s current regulatory framework The Committee recognises that flight time limitations are complex regulations but the report highlights several issues where there is clear scope for improvement The proposed 11 hour duty period at night for pilots flies in the face of scientific evidence and should be reduced to a 10 hour maximum There is added concern that a pilot could land a plane after 22 hours awake The Civil Aviation Authority must do more to monitor pilot hours so that long duty periods are the exception not the rule and must address a culture of under reporting of pilot fatigue MPs accept that common European flight time limitations could improve aviation safety for UK passengers travelling on non UK airlines However for these benefits to be realised the European standards must be uniformly high

House of Commons - Transport Committee: Flight Time Limitations: Follow Up - HC 641 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee,2013-09-11 Flight time limitations regulate the number of hours that pilots and crew work in order to prevent fatigue Fatigue contributes 15 20% of fatal aviation incidents caused by human error In July 2013 Member States of the European Union voted strongly in support of a draft proposal on flight time limitations by the European Commission Overall the Commission s draft regulation represents an improvement but concerns remain Particularly about the apparent reluctance of the Commission when developing these regulations to set a lower limit for the flight duty period at night in accordance with the scientific evidence on this matter It is disappointing that the UK Government has not pressed for a lower limit It is also disappointing that a consensus has not been reached on the draft regulations with crew and pilot representatives It is recommended that the European Scrutiny Committee requests the UK Government to press the Commission to ensure an effective monitoring regime is put in place to examine whether the 11 hour limit is at least as safe as the current regime and that they request the European Commission provide an assessment of the regulation two years after its implementation The Committee also concluded that the potential under reporting of pilot fatigue must be properly recognised if it is to be effectively tackled information should be regularly published on the use of Commander's discretion to extend their crew's flight duty period if unforeseen circumstances arise and scientists must have a more central role in the development and assessment of flight time limitation proposals

Aerospace Health and Safety: Today and the Future Irina Mordukhovich, Mardi A. Crane-Godreau, Eileen Mcneely, Christopher Scheibler, 2023-11-20

Aviation plays vital roles in commerce defense science and leisure travel Irrespective of the purpose of flight crew and passengers are challenged by exposure to a variety of environmental conditions that can differ widely from work and travel environments on the surface of the Earth With anticipated changes in aviation and space technology new challenges to health and safety of crew and passengers can be expected In this Research Topic we welcome contributions from those whose work and interests are relevant to the health and safety of crew and passengers This includes but is not limited to health and safety professionals FAA examiners corporate medical officers aerospace and occupational physicians physiologists military and scientific team members public health professionals as well as engineers who are tasked with crew and passenger health and safety design projects While 4.1 billion passengers fly on commercial airlines annually and this figure is even higher when taking into account privately owned aircraft and military flight for the most part aviation is safe Passengers do arrive at their destinations with little concern to their own well being and flight is generally well tolerated However older flyers people with diagnosed or undiagnosed preexisting disease and other vulnerable passengers such as young children and pregnant women may be at risk of complications and crew may be at special risk due to the frequency and duration of their many flight related exposures Health and safety issues for crew and passengers include but are not limited to potentially severe circadian rhythm disruption potential health effects of low level cosmic ionizing radiation exposure at altitude reduced oxygen delivery and tissue hypoxia at cabin pressurization cabin air contamination by engine gases toxic materials used in uniforms and some cabin seat materials occupational noise pesticides used for cabin disinsection lack of adequate crew rest on layovers or between flights cardiovascular demands of flight and effects of flight related dehydration the current absence of screening protocols especially in the context of a rising number of elderly and vulnerable flyers lack of healthy nutrition at airports and in flight availability of food and hydration as well as adequate cabin temperature under delay conditions effects of alcohol use on flight related physiological and behavioral health risks anxiety and psychological distress associated with air travel the effects of long haul or ultra long haul flights on thromboembolic events as well as smoking cessation efforts and related psychological outcomes job related stress and harassment among crew Cosmic ionizing and non ionizing radiation exposure have drawn attention as have historic exposures of crew and passengers to second hand cigarette smoke The threat of political and interpersonal violence and altercations involving aviation cannot be overlooked On board medical emergencies run a wide gamut and the capacity to respond becomes more problematic as the duration of flights becomes longer or in the case of flight over oceans and the poles In addition in flight and post flight embolisms and myocardial infarctions are more prevalent than might be expected We hence encourage manuscripts that address in flight medical response including the capabilities on different types of aircraft on potential interventions by crew and medical volunteers In addition aviation as a vector for the carriage of disease is a significant concern to public health and security of populations world wide and we welcome submissions regarding infectious disease epidemiology and medicine as it relates to air travel Insects and occasional unplanned travel by birds and rodents can present additional public health concerns We are approaching an era where space travel may soon be increasingly common Future flights for near Earth orbit by leisure travelers and as well as travel to the moon and Mars raise a host of new questions with health and safety implications What are the proposed health and safety accommodations going to be Who will be allowed to travel Perhaps the most interesting question is who will make the rules

EASA Enroute Instrument Rating Phil Croucher,2014-09-24 Until recently the only option for instrument rating training in Europe was a full course requiring up to 200 hours of theoretical knowledge instruction but the Enroute and Competency Based Instrument ratings for aeroplanes only are a part of a new approach that is supposed to make instrument flying more accessible because the original courses were designed as part of a commercial course and were necessarily intense This book is for people who already hold an ICAO IR and who can simply convert to the EASA version by completing the skill test and demonstrating to the examiner during the skill test an adequate knowledge of air law meteorology and flight planning It contains all the information needed to answer the examiner s questions plus tip and tricks not usually taught on such a basic course

Air Transport System Dieter Schmitt,Volker Gollnick,2015-10-06 The book addresses all major aspects to be considered for the design and operation of aircrafts within the entire transportation chain It provides the basic information about the legal environment which defines the basic requirements for aircraft design and aircraft operation The interactions between airport air traffic management and the airlines are described The market forecast methods and the aircraft development process are explained to understand the very complex and risky business of an aircraft manufacturer The principles of flight physics as basis for aircraft design are presented and linked to the operational and legal aspects of air transport including all environmental impacts The book is written for graduate students as well as for engineers and experts who are working in aerospace industry at airports or in the domain of transport and logistics

Trials of the Moon Ben Whitmore, 2010. The creation myths of modern witchcraft and Paganism were decisively toppled at the turn of this century in Ronald Hutton's celebrated book Triumph of the Moon. But did Hutton topple more than just myths? Are some truths also hidden in the rubble? Did Paganism really die out centuries ago? Was witchcraft really no more than a fantasy? Were the Gods of Wicca really born out of the Romantic movement? Did Gerald Gardner lie about his initiation into witchcraft Ben Whitmore has retraced many of Hutton's steps critically evaluating the evidence and he now suggests that the truth may be quite different and even more fascinating Drawing on a wealth of scholarly material Whitmore demonstrates that the field of Pagan history is anything but barren ground it is rich and fertile and we have barely begun to cultivate it
