language of Islam and Islamic Law and only thereby also enhance participatory spaces for marginalized people

Him Ko,2017-08-10 This study focuses on the Chronicler's special interest in Levite singers. It takes into consideration the socio-ideological milieu of the Jerusalem temple community in the Persian period and the Mesopotamian elite professional norms and practices that nourished the singers and their music. It also explores the conception of the earthly temple as representative of its heavenly counterpart and looks at the way in which this shaped the Chronicler's theological frame of reference. The work is divided into two parts. Part I examines the Mesopotamian scribal musical background to which Ko attributes the rise of music in Chronicles. Part II considers the Chronicler's ideological perspective, the language of the temple and the educational scribal and liturgical services of Levite singers. By focusing on the characterisation of the Levite singers in the light of their Mesopotamian counterparts, Ko shows how they sought to foster cosmic stability according to the terms of the Davidic covenant.

Stories of Identity among Black, Middle Class, Second Generation Caribbeans Yndia S.

Lorick-Wilmot,2017-08-29 This volume addresses how black middle class second generation Caribbean immigrants are often overlooked in contemporary discussions of race, black economic mobility and immigrant communities in the US. Based on rich ethnography, Yndia S. Lorick-Wilmot draws attention to this persisting invisibility by exploring this generation's experiences in challenging structures of oppression as adult children of post-1965 Caribbean immigrants and as an important part of the African American middle class. She recounts compelling stories from participants regarding their identity performances in public and private spaces, including what it means to be black and making it in America, as well as the race, gender and class constraints they face as part of a larger transnational community.
