Kapitalismus und Naturzerstörung Christian Stache, 2017-05-15 Historisch-materialistische Kritik gängiger Erklärungen des gesellschaftlichen Naturverhältnisses im Kapitalismus fördert idealistische, kulturalistische und politizistische Verkürzungen zu Tage. Eine kritische Theorie des gesellschaftlichen Naturverhältnisses auf Basis des Marx'schen Hauptwerks Das Kapital zeigt, dass die Gesetzmäßigkeiten der kapitalistischen Gesellschaft notwendig zu systematischer Naturzerstörung führen. Die kapitalistische Produktionsweise ist mit nachhaltiger Entwicklung unvereinbar.

Varmints and Victims Frank Van Nuys, 2015-11-09 It used to be. If you see a coyote shoot it. Better yet a bear. Best of all perhaps a wolf. How we've gotten from there to here where such predators are reintroduced, protected and in some cases revered is the story Frank Van Nuys tells in Varmints and Victims, a thorough and enlightening look at the evolution of predator management in the American West. As controversies over predator control rage on, Varmints and Victims puts the debate into historical context, tracing the West's relationship with charismatic predators like grizzlies, wolves and cougars from unquestioned eradication to ambivalent recovery efforts. Van Nuys offers a nuanced and balanced perspective on an often emotional topic, exploring the intricacies of how and why attitudes toward predators have changed over the years. Focusing primarily on wolves, coyotes, mountain lions and grizzly bears, he charts the logic and methods of management practiced by ranchers, hunters and federal officials. Broad in scope and rich in detail, this work brings new, much needed clarity to the complex interweaving of economics, politics, science and culture in the formulation of ideas about predator species and in policies directed at these creatures. In the process, we come to see how the story of predator control is in many ways the story of the American West itself, from early attempts to connect the frontier region to mainstream American life and economics to present ideas about the nature and singularity of the region.

Wild Capital Barbara K. Jones, 2019-11-11 In Wild Capital, Barbara Jones demonstrates that looking at nature through the lens of the marketplace is a surprisingly effective approach to protecting the environment. Showing that policy makers and developers rarely associate wild places with monetary values, Jones argues that nature can and should be viewed as a capital asset like any other in order for environmental preservation to be a competitive alternative to development. Jones describes how the ecosystem services model, a tool that connects human well-being with the services nature provides, can play a critical role in assigning species and their habitats measurable values. She uses five highly recognizable animal species: moose, manatees, sharks, wolves, and bald eagles as examples to show how highly valued charismatic fauna can serve as symbolic representations of entire ecosystems at risk. Through an emphasis on branding incentives and ecotourism, Jones advocates for channeling the social and economic power of these and other faces of nature to inspire greater environmental awareness and stewardship. Contending that many people don't realize how fiscally pragmatic environmental initiatives can be, Jones is optimistic that by recognizing the costs of habitat destruction and diminished biodiversity, we will make better choices regarding conservation and development. In doing so, we can more readily move toward coexistence with nature and a sustainable future.

Wolf Nation Brenda Peterson, 2017-05-02 In the tradition of Peter Matthiessen's Wildlife in America or Aldo Leopold, Brenda Peterson tells the 300-year history of wild wolves in America. It is also our own history seen through our relationship with wolves. The earliest Americans revered them. Settlers zealously exterminated them. Now scientists, writers, and ordinary citizens are fighting to bring them back to the wild. Peterson, an eloquent voice in the battle for twenty years, makes the powerful case that without wolves, not only will our whole ecology unravel, but we'll lose much of our national soul.

Give Smart Thomas J. Tierney, Joel L. Fleishman, 2011-03-29 A decade ago, Thomas J. Tierney left Bain Company to cofound The Bridgespan Group, a nonprofit focused on helping donors and nonprofit leaders to develop and execute strategies to accelerate social change. In Give Smart, Tierney pools his hands-on knowledge with Duke professor Joel L. Fleishman's expertise to create a much-needed primer for philanthropists and the nonprofit organizations they support. Drawing from personal experiences, research spanning twentieth and twenty-first century philanthropy, contemporary interviews, and Bridgespan's extensive field work, Give Smart presents the definitive guide to engaged philanthropy.

Animals and the Environment Lisa Kemmerer, 2015-05-01 Contemporary Earth and animal activists rarely collaborate, perhaps because environmentalists focus on species and ecosystems while animal advocates look to the individual, and neither seems to have much respect for the other. This diverse collection of essays highlights common ground between earth and animal advocates, most notably the protection of wildlife and personal dietary choice. If earth and animal advocates move beyond philosophical differences and resultant divergent priorities, turning attention to shared goals, both will be more effective, and both animals and the environment will benefit. Given the undeniable seriousness of the environmental problems that we face, including climate change and species extinction it is essential that activists join forces Drawing on a wide range of issues and disciplines ranging from wildlife management hunting and the work of NGOs to ethics ecofeminism religion and animal welfare this volume provides a stimulating collection of ideas and challenges for anyone else who cares about the environment or animals

Protecting Yellowstone Michael J. Yochim, 2013-03-15 Yellowstone National Park looks like a pristine western landscape populated by its wild inhabitants bison grizzly bears and wolves But the bison do not always range freely snowmobile noise intrudes upon the park's profound winter silence and some tourist villages are located in prime grizzly bear habitat Despite these problems the National Park Service has succeeded in reintroducing wolves allowing wildfires to play their natural role in park forests and prohibiting a gold mine that would be present in other more typical western landscapes Each of these issues bison snowmobiles grizzly bears wolves fires and the New World Mine was the center of a recent policy making controversy involving federal politicians robust debate with interested stakeholders and discussions about the relevant science Yet the outcomes of the controversies varied considerably depending on politics science how well park managers allied themselves with external interests and public thinking about the effects of park proposals on their access and economies Michael Yochim examines the primary influences upon contemporary national park policy making and considers how those influences shaped or constrained the final policy In addition Yochim considers how park managers may best work within the contemporary policy making context to preserve national parks
