Signs in the Dust Nathan Lyons, 2019-02-28 Modern thought is characterized by a dichotomy of meaningful culture and unmeaning nature Signs in the Dust uses medieval semiotics to develop a new theory of nature and culture that resists this familiar picture of things Through readings of Thomas Aquinas Nicholas of Cusa and John Poincaré John of St Thomas it offers a semiotic analysis of human culture in both its anthropological breadth as an enterprise of creaturely sign making and its theological height as a finite participation in the Trinity which can be understood as an absolute cultural nature Signs in the Dust then extends this account of human culture backwards into the natural depth of biological and physical nature It puts the biosemiotics of its medieval sources along with Félix Ravaisson's philosophy of habit into dialogue with the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis that is emerging in contemporary biology to show how all living things participate in semiosis so that that a cultural dimension is present through the whole order of nature and the whole of natural history It also retrieves Aquinas doctrine of intentions in the medium to show how signification can be attributed in a diminished way to even inanimate nature with the ontological implication that being as such should be reconceived in semiotic terms The phenomena of human culture are therefore to be understood not as breaks with a meaningless nature but instead as heightenings and deepenings of natural movements of meaning that long precede and far exceed us Against the modern divorce of nature and culture Signs in the Dust argues that culture is natural and nature is cultural through and through
