Vollmann Christopher K. Coffman, Daniel Lukes, 2014-12-18 This fascinating massive wide ranging collection that editors Christopher K Coffman and Daniel Lukes have gathered together into William T Vollmann A Critical Companion will soon be recognized as one of those rare critical books for which that egregiously overused term groundbreaking is fully justified Larry McCaffery from the preface of William T Vollmann A Critical Companion The essays in this collection make a case for regarding William T Vollmann as the most ambitious productive and important living author in the US His oeuvre includes not only outstanding work in numerous literary genres but also global reportage ethical treatises paintings photographs and many other productions His reputation as a daring traveler and his fascination with life on the margins have earned him an extra literary renown unequalled in our time Perhaps most importantly his work is exceptional in relation to the literary moment Vollmann is a member of a group of authors who are responding to the skeptical ironies of postmodernism with a reinvigoration of fiction's affective possibilities and moral sensibilities but he stands out even among this cohort for his prioritization of moral engagement, historical awareness and geopolitical scope. Included in this book in addition to twelve scholarly critical essays are reflections on Vollmann by many of his peers, confidantes and collaborators including Jonathan Franzen, James Franco and Michael Glawogger. With a preface by Larry McCaffery and an afterword by Michael Hemmingson, this book offers readings of most of Vollmann's works. Includes the first critical engagements with several key titles and introduces a range of voices from international Vollmann scholarship.

Ungrateful Daughters Justyna Włodarczyk, 2010-08-11. Has the third wave of feminism in the United States spawned a literary movement? Is there a third wave equivalent of the consciousness-raising novel? A lot has been written about the relationship of the third wave of feminism in the United States to the second wave, yet no one has examined works by young female writers as belonging to the third wave of feminism. This book fills the gap. Using tools of literary criticism to analyze the literary output of third wave feminism in the United States, Ungrateful Daughters looks at the main anthologies of third wave writings, paying attention to their structure, production process and narrative forms used in the individual pieces. It also attempts to define third wave fiction and analyze the memoirs and novels coming from writers who could be classified as third wave, specifically Rebecca Walker, Danzy Senna and Michelle Tea, tracing how these books exhibit third wave sensibility and reflect generational experiences of third wave writers. A lot of attention is devoted to comparisons of second and third wave feminism and the ambivalent relationship of third wave feminism to postfeminism. Wendy Kaminer wrote in True Love Waits: "If it ultimately fails as a liberation movement, feminism will at least have achieved considerable literary success." Ungrateful Daughters examines whether the literary success helps or hinders the cause of women's liberation.

Unsustainable Laurie J. C. Cella, Jessica Restaino, 2012-12-14. Unsustainable: Reimagining Community Literacy, Public Writing, Service Learning and the University, edited by Jessica Restaino and Laurie Cella, explores short-lived university community writing projects in an effort to rethink the long-held gold standard of long-term sustainability in community writing work. Contributors examine their own efforts in order to provide alternate models for understanding, assessing and enacting university community writing projects that for a range of reasons fall outside of traditional practice. This collection considers what has become an increasingly unified call for praxis where scholars/practitioners explore a specific project that fell short of theorized best practice sustainability in order to determine not only the nature of what remains, how and why we might find value in a community-based writing project that lacks long-term sustainability, for example, but also how or why we might rethink, redefine and reevaluate best practice ideals in the first place. In so doing, the contributors are at once responding to what has been an increasing acknowledgment in the field that for a variety of reasons many community-based writing projects do not go as initially planned and also applying in praxis a framework for thinking about and studying such projects. Unsustainable represents the kind of scholarly work that some of the most recognizable names in the field have been calling for over the past five years This book affirms that unpredictability is an indispensable factor in the field and argues that such unpredictability presents in fact demands a theoretical approach that takes these practical experiences as its base

Neither Angels nor Demons Kathleen Ferraro, 2015-12-01 She is a victim of intimate partner violence a woman who has been harmed She is a criminal offender a woman who has harmed others Superficially it seems she is two separate women Victim and offender are binary categories used within law social science and public discourse to describe social experiences with a moral dimension Such terms draw upon cultural narratives of good and bad people and have influenced scholarship public policy and activism The duality of good and bad women separated into mutually exclusive extremes of angels and demons has helped segregate thinking about and responses to each group In this groundbreaking study Kathleen J Ferraro exposes the limits of such thinking by exploring the link between victimization and offending from the perspective of the women charged with the crimes Interviewing forty five women charged with criminal offenses more than half of whom killed their abusers the others participated in a range of violent crimes related to domestic violence Ferraro uses their stories to illuminate complex interactions with violent partners their children and the legal system She shows that these women are neither stereotypical angels nor demons but rather human beings whose complicated lives belie the abstract categorizations of researchers legal advocates and the criminal justice system Ferraro begins with a general discussion of blurred boundaries and the complexity of experience and moves from there to discuss women s interactions with the criminal processing system In the course of her study she reexamines and finds wanting many standard ways of evaluating women s violent behavior including mutual combat battered woman syndrome and cycle of violence She argues that a more complex nuanced understanding of intimate partner violence and how it contributes to women s offending will contribute to public policy less focused on control and accountability of individuals than on developing social conditions that promote everyone s safety and well being and foster a sense of hope
