Meier, Helen Aristar-Dry, Emilie Destruel, 2009-10-20 Carlota S Smith was a key figure in linguistic research and a pioneering woman in generative linguistics This selection of papers focuses on the research into tense aspect and discourse that Smith completed while Professor of Linguistics at the University of Texas at Austin Smith's early work in English syntax is still cited today and her early career also yielded key research on language acquisition by young children Starting in the mid 1970s after her move to UT she embarked on her most important line of research In numerous papers the first of which was published in 1975 and in a very important 1991 book The Parameter of Aspect Smith analyzed how languages encode time and how they encode the ways events and situations occur over time Smith's work on the expression of time in language is notable because of its careful analyses of a number of quite different languages including not only English and French but also Russian Mandarin and Navajo Inspired by a year in France in the early 1970s Smith began to analyze the differing ways in which languages encode time and how they encode the ways events and situations occur over time In doing so she developed her signature two component theory of aspect This model of temporal aspect provided an excellent framework for graduate students seeking to analyze the temporal systems of an array of languages including under described languages that are so much the focus of research in UT's Linguistics Department Selected by Carlota Smith herself and by her longtime friends and colleagues this book contains her 1980 piece on temporal structures in discourse her 1986 comparison of the English and French aspectual systems a 1996 paper on the aspect system in Navajo an increasingly endangered language which Smith worked to preserve and her 1980 and 1993 papers on the child's acquisition of tense and aspect Smith who died in 2007 was a trailblazer in her field whose broad interests fed into her scholarly research She was an avid reader who sought to bring the analytic tools of linguistics to the humanistic study of literature by examining the syntactic and pragmatic principles which underlie literary effects Her research on rhetorical and temporal effects in context was integrated into her last book Modes of Discourse 2003 The current volume of articles covers much of her most fruitful work on the way in which language is used to express time and will be essential reading for many working and studying in linguistics generally and in semantics particularly

The Drama in the Text Enoch Brater, 1994 In this rich and perceptive study of some of the most haunting fiction written in the late twentieth century Beckett critic Enoch Brater continues his investigation of the tension between text and script silence and associational sound Brater argues with great learning that Beckett's fiction like his radio plays demands to be read aloud since much of the emotional meaning lodges in its tonality Here the rhythm of Beckett's labouring heart finds its performative voice as the reader now turned listener collaborates in the creation of a musical composition that must elucidate the stillness of the universe The Drama in the Text is a book about reciting and recounting about how we know and what we know when we read a lyrical text crafted in prose but sounding like something else instead Brater ranges across all of Beckett's work quoting from it liberally and makes connections mainly with other writers but also with details drawn from the whole Western cultural heritage The only book that deals thoroughly with Beckett's complete late fiction Brater's study opens to a wide literary audience the difficult and elliptical nature of Beckett's mature prose style For those readers who find Beckett's late fiction impossible to follow let alone describe this book will be an authoritative and persuasive guide providing recognition insight and accessibility
