Fundamentals of Experimental Design

What is measured during a controlled experiment?

Why?

Working in the science lab can be a lot of fun. Mixing random chemicals and burning stuff just to see what happens can be entertaining (and possibly dangerous), but it doesn't lead to anything helpful to the scientific community. In order to be helpful to the community, a researcher's work in the lab must be systematic. A researcher usually asks a question and then designs an experiment to investigate that question. In this activity you will identify different types of variables that will help you design controlled experiments.

experiences without an answer because I haven't tried them. It is just ideas and training for you dear reader on scientific thinking and the results should not be specific and known in advance but it is scientific honesty to be as it happened and not as we want. Experimental Design and Analysis Wayne Lee, 1975 Experimentation David Carr Baird, 1995.
