For each item, show the reader how to get to the solution.

Answer all items clearly and with correct notation.

Identify everything that you write down.

Include all relevant information, do not include irrelevant information.

Use correct notation throughout. For example, use equal signs to indicate when two quantities are equal, do not put an equal sign between two quantities which aren't equal.

Write out your solution in order, and put your conclusion at the end.

Do not circle answers; if you are asked for the value of A , for example, you should explicitly conclude " A is ..." or " $A = \dots$ ".
