Fundamental rights in India

Fundamental rights in India are the rights guaranteed under Part III (Articles 12-35) of the Constitution of India. There are six fundamental rights (Article 12 - 35) recognised by the Indian constitution:

- the right to equality (Articles 14-18),
- the right to freedom (Articles 19-22),
- the right against exploitation (Articles 23-24),
- the right to freedom of religion (Articles 25-28),
- cultural and educational rights (Articles 29-30) and
- the right to constitutional remedies (Article 32 and 226).<sup>[1]</sup>

While the Constitution also provides some other rights, such as the Right to Property (now legal right under Article 300A (44th Amendment Act, 1978), that are not fundamental rights. In cases of fundamental rights violations, the Supreme Court of India can be directly petitioned under Article 32 of the Constitution. The rights have their origins in many sources, including England's Bill of Rights, the United States Bill of Rights and France's Declaration of the Rights of Man.

Fundamental rights have also been used to abolish untouchability and thus prohibit discrimination on the grounds of religion, race, caste, gender or place of birth. They also forbid trafficking of human beings and forced labour (a crime). They also protect cultural and educational rights of religious establishments. Right to property was changed from fundamental right to legal right. Sardar Vallabhai Patel is considered as the chief architect of fundamental rights of Indian constitution.
