The Global Casino: An Introduction to Environmental Issues, Fourth Edition Nick Middleton, 2013-11-26
The Global Casino is a compelling introduction to environmental issues which links the physical environment to its political, social and economic contexts. Case studies from around the globe are used to illustrate key environmental issues from global warming and deforestation to natural hazards and soil erosion. The book highlights the underlying causes behind environmental problems including human actions and emphasises the potential for solutions. In line with contemporary international trends, emphasis is placed on the critical concept of sustainable development. This new edition has been thoroughly revised and updated with the introduction of new illustrative material and up to the minute case studies on topics such as endangered deep sea species, the global uptake of unleaded petrol, geothermal energy in Iceland, genocide in Rwanda and the Indian Ocean tsunami of 2004. Particularly useful features for students include points for discussion at the end of each chapter as well as a comprehensive glossary. The lists of key readings and websites again linked specifically to the content of each chapter have been fully updated and expanded. The Global Casino is the essential course companion for students of the environment, geography, earth sciences and development studies. A-level Geography Topic Master: Coastal Landscapes Peter Stiff, 2019-01-07

Nutrients in upwelling areas are spread by ocean currents and the plankton of the seas supports a wealth of wildlife. In this Very Short Introduction Dorrik Stow analyses these most important components of our blue planet and considers their relationship with and exploitation by humans. He shows how the oceans are an essential resource to our overpopulated world and discusses why exploration and greater scientific understanding of the oceans, their chemistry and their mineral wealth are now a high priority. Stow also explores what we know of how oceans originate and evolve and change the shape of the seafloor and nature of its cover, the physical processes that stir the waters and mix such a rich chemical broth and the inseparable link between oceans and climate. As polar ice melts and sea levels rise, countless millions who have made their homes on low-lying lands close to the sea are threatened. As scientific exploration of the seas gathers pace, the new knowledge gained of the ocean Earth systems and their interaction with the human environment is vital to our understanding of how we can preserve these ultimately fragile environments.

Geography John Morgan, David Lambert, 2005-06-21 When Geography specialists decide they want to teach it, it can be a daunting prospect to enter a real classroom, no matter how much subject knowledge they already possess. Geography Teaching School Subjects 11-19 puts the subject into perspective and shows new teachers and student teachers how to make Geography accessible and interesting for their pupils. Divided into three sections, the book examines the theory and practice of teaching geography. Section one explores how teachers can frame their own knowledge for classroom practice; section two focuses on Geography in the classroom and curriculum development, as well as aspects of pedagogy and lesson design, evaluation, and assessment; section three focuses on the teachers themselves and how they can view and work on professional development within their own subject area.

The status and distribution of freshwater biodiversity in the eastern Mediterranean Kevin G. Smith, Violeta Barrios, William R.T. Darwall, Catherine Numa, 2014-01-01 The Eastern Mediterranean region supports just over 4.4% of the global human population yet contains only 1.1% of its renewable water resources, which are under constant threat from the impacts of unsustainable water withdrawal, dam development, and climate change. This IUCN report and accompanying dataset represents a major advance in the provision of information to help incorporate biodiversity needs into water development planning processes within an Integrated River Basin Management framework. This volume includes species information compiled for each river and lake sub-basin and incorporates information from the assessment conducted by IUCN's Global Species Programme in collaboration with its partners on the status and distribution of all described species of freshwater fishes, molluscs, odonates, and plants from across the Eastern Mediterranean, with existing information for species of freshwater-dependent amphibians, birds, crustaceans, and mammals.
