Financial Management Practices P.K. Jain, Shveta Singh, Surendra Singh Yadav, 2013-03-26 Financial management practices are likely to have a marked effect on the financial performance of a corporate enterprise Therefore sound financial decisions practices can contribute towards meeting the desired objective of having profitable operations This subject assumes paramount significance in view of the present dynamic and turbulent business environment which has produced more intense competition and smaller profit margins across the world. In this context, the financial management practices of the corporates in India, a country with a vast potential for economic growth, can offer valuable insights. The present study explores whether there has been a major change in the financial performance measured in terms of profitability and financial policies/decisions of the sample companies over a fixed period 2000-2001 to 2010-2011 with a special focus on pre and post recession analysis. It delves deeper into current research areas such as zero working capital, real options in capital budgeting, pecking order in capital structures, and clause 49 as reflected in the financial management decisions of sample companies and provides a broader perspective by identifying trends, if any, in certain aspects of financial decision making over the past two decades. A comprehensive study covering all the major aspects of financial management practices also contains an inter-sectoral study among the sample companies and develops an index of professionalism in financial management based on the practices of the sample companies. The book is primarily targeted at teachers, students of finance management, commerce, accounting, and related professional disciplines/fields. Practitioners/professionals will find it an invaluable text that helps guide them to better decision making.

Digital tools and agricultural market transformation in Africa: Why are they not at scale yet, and what will it take to get there? Abay, Kibrom A., Abate, Gashaw Tadesse, Chamberlin, Jordan, Kassim, Yumna, Spielman, David J., 2021-12-31. This paper presents results from a framed field experiment in which participants make decisions about extraction of a common pool resource, a community forest. The experiment was designed and piloted as both a research activity and an experiential learning intervention during 2017-2018 with 120 groups of resource users split by gender from 60 habitations in two Indian states, Andhra Pradesh and Rajasthan. We examine whether local beliefs and norms about community forest, gender of participants, within-experiment treatments (non-communication, communication, and optional election of institutional arrangements), rules, and remuneration methods affect harvest behaviour and groups' tendency to cooperate. Furthermore, we explore whether the experiment and subsequent community debriefing had learning effects. Results reveal a weak Nash Equilibrium in which participants harvested substantially less than the Nash prediction, even in the absence of communication, a phenomenon stronger for male than female participants in both states. For male groups in both states, both communication and optional rule election are associated with lower group harvest per round as compared to the reference non-communication game. For female groups in both states however communication itself did not significantly slow down resource depletion but the introduction of optional rule election did reduce harvest amounts For both men and women in Andhra Pradesh and men in Rajasthan incentivized payments to individual participants significantly lowered group harvest relative to community flat payment suggesting a possible crowding in effect on pro social norms Despite the generally positive memory of the activity reported actual changes are limited This may be due to the lack of follow up with the communities between the experiment and the revisit The fact that many of the communities already have a good understanding of the importance of the relationships between not cutting trees and the ecosystem services from forests with rules and strong internal norms against cutting that go beyond the felling of trees in the game may have also meant that the game did not have as much to add Findings have methodological and practical implications for designing behavioral intervention programs to improve common pool resource governance

Modelling was founded in September 1986 in Lisbon. The primary field of interest for the Working Group can be described as the development of financial models that help to solve problems faced by financial managers in the firm. From this point of view, the following objectives of the Working Group are distinguished: providing an international forum for exchange of information and experience on financial modelling; encouraging research in financial modelling, i.e. new techniques, methodologies, software, empirical studies, etc.; stimulating and strengthening the interaction between financial economic theory and the practice of financial decision making; cooperating and exchanging information with universities and financial institutions throughout Europe. According to the above objectives, the basic aim of this book is to present some new operational approaches, i.e. neural nets, multicriteria analysis, new optimization algorithms, decision software, etc. for financial modelling, both in a theoretical and practical level. Thus, the present volume is divided into nine chapters. The first chapter refers to the new trends in financial modelling and includes two invited papers by Gil Aluja and Pardalos. The second chapter involves papers on the topic of high performance computing and finance, which is a European Union project in which participate some members of the EURO Working Group on Financial Modelling: Spronk, Zenios, Dempster, etc.
