

LETTERS from READERS

THE F-N RUMPU

Sir,

When is Mr. Alan K. Clerk, whose bad-tempered effusion intrudes upon the correspondence columns this month?

Let him forthwith be placed at the wheel of a Jaguar and pursued by "Nashes" along a wet and winding road until the inevitable happens!

I am, Yours, etc.,

HYDER H. CUNDEY.

London, W.3.

Sir,

A further distinction resulted by Mr. Alan K. Clerk in his comparison in your August issue of the 2-litre Frazer-Nash with a 3½-litre car of approximately half the price, is that the former appears to be relatively unimpaired when the road deviates from the straight.

While this observation may not apply in regard to such vehicles as have a "C" in their name, will these be available at half the price of the Frazer-Nash and can it be said that they afford the "adequate comfort and protection" attributed to the type without the suffix?

A comparison, to the detriment of the smaller-engined vehicle, of cars of such dissimilar engine capacity, is of little value, but it would be of interest to be informed in what respects the power unit designed by the "clever Germans in 1936" should be regarded as obsolete. Does your correspondent claim any outstanding novelty in the design of the 3½-litre engine, good as it undoubtedly is? Has it not, in fact, much in common with earlier power units, including that of a sporting motor car designed in Wolverhampton by some clever Englishmen (with perhaps a little French inspiration) long before "Smiley little airfield circuits" were thought of?

I am, Yours, etc.,

C. W. J. HARRIS.

Chelmsford.

Sir,

Surely Mr. A. K. Clerk's letter is a rather unjustifiable attack on Mr. Aldington for writing in praise of a car in which he is interested.

The power unit of the Frazer-Nash may be out of date, but in 1937 the 2-litre 328 F.N.-B.M.W. was timed at 193 m.p.h. against the 115 m.p.h. of the 1951 3½-litre Jaguar XK 120, and it was also two seconds faster from 0-70 m.p.h. than the larger car.

Unfortunately, I have no performance figures for a modern "Nash", but, taking into consideration the much smaller engine, I should say its figure of merit is high—not taking price into consideration, because price must be balanced against length of life and only time will show whether a "Nash" can outlast a cheaper rival. In the mid-'30s there were several American cars which for performance and refinement of running could equal a Rolls-Royce for about two years, though they cost well under £1,000, but they are rough now, while a Rolls is still a thing of beauty and refinement.

N.B.—Opinions expressed are those of our correspondents and Motor Sport does not necessarily associate itself with them.—Ed.

It appears to me that the chase for ultra high speed is ruining the true sports car, by which I mean a car designed for fast touring and not racing. The owner of a 115-m.p.h. two-seater can rarely use the last 20 m.p.h. of his speed and few are fit to drive so fast, while his cruising speed is more likely to be 70 m.p.h., a speed well within the capability of the old four-seater sports car in which four enthusiasts with baggage could have a weekend outing at 15-20 m.p.g. Now two cars are needed for such a trip.

One does not expect a 2-litre car to give fast four-seater performance, but 20 years ago 3½ litres could and did do so. The following figures suggest to me that the British has the most usable performance of any fast car of which I have much data, though I know that the Invicta, 4½-litre Bentley, Mercedes and Alvis all had good acceleration between 20 and 70 m.p.h., the vital period for fast averages. All cost more than the Jaguar at present-day values, but many are able to give 90 per cent. of their original performance after many years of service.

I do not wish to decry the Jaguar, which is doing much to restore car prestige, but other cars, particularly Frazer-Nash, have been doing this for some years, and I hope that some day we shall see a return to the genuine four-seater sports or fast-tourer. Until then vintage cars will hold the affections of many, and Frazer-Nash has vintage blood in it.

Mr. Clerk's remarks about the Frazer-Nash investment are in poor taste. There have been several claims for the fastest road car (but none by Hagetti to my knowledge), and only Rolls-Royce is universally accepted as the best car in the world. Friendly rivalry is a good thing but let us avoid slanging each other. To me there will never be a car like the Leyland Knight, but I see no objection to any other manufacturer or interested person praising his own fancy.

Good hunting to all competitors in racing, which I love, but when talking of sports cars I prefer to ignore speeds over 100 m.p.h. and rely on acceleration figures, unless it is intended to compete in races.

I am, Yours, etc.,

Oxford. N. J. WARR.

[The B.M.W. which did 193 m.p.h., was rather "hotter" than most 328s.—Ed.]

Sir,

Your correspondent Mr. Alan Clerk spoils his case by over-statement, the Frazer-Nash being, from the point of view of sheer performance, the finest out-and-out sports car in this country (the new Jaguar excepted). But it is, also, true that not only the engine, but the whole car, is merely an Anglicised B.M.W., and although it has been developed into a better car all round than its size, it is little improvement on the few pre-war B.M.W.s which have received the same attention.

The example of the "Nash" does show up the appalling lack of sporting machinery conceived and produced in Britain since the war; there are only two names, Jaguar and Aston-Martin; with the possible addition of the Jupiter, which has proved disappointing due to a surplus of weight and an engine unavailable in its present form. Indeed, there are no 1½-litre engines now available which produce anything like the power of the Aston-Martin and Riley of 15 years ago, and the Hawthorn Riley must be the fastest British 1½-litre car. But the lack of power units is not the crux of the matter. At Le Mans this year, no less than three of the categories were won by Continental family saloons; not only were they family saloons but two of them were in mass-production and the third, the Porsche, is virtually merely a Vellor wages sports model. Although there was no opposition from this country to the Renaults and the Porsches (itself a deplorable state of affairs), the Lancia Aurelia on its modest 75 h.p. convincingly beat "our" Frazer-Nashes, which have a power-to-weight ratio twice as good, half the seating capacity, about a quarter the weather protection, and cost twice as much. Incidentally, one motoring paper reported that "the Lancia's fastest lap was only 37 m.p.h."

I think it is clear that in the matter of overall design, and particularly in the influence that has on handling characteristics, the gap which existed between Britain and the Continent in 1939 has now become, or is certainly becoming, even wider. I cannot imagine any British family saloon averaging nearly 70 m.p.h. for the 24 hours at Le Mans, let alone anything as small and as cheap as the Renault; modified merely to "Stage II" specification, incidentally.

If it were not for the Jaguars and Austons the outlook would be intolerable; but meanwhile there is available in this country a sports car which, though unobtainable, represents outstanding value for money by any standards, even by comparison with the Jaguar—the Morgan Plus Four.

I am, Yours, etc.,

Callington. ANTHONY BLIGHT.

Forum Magazine Readers Letters Introduction

In today's digital age, the availability of Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download has revolutionized the way we access information. Gone are the days of physically flipping through pages and carrying heavy textbooks or manuals. With just a few clicks, we can now access a wealth of knowledge from the comfort of our own homes or on the go. This article will explore the advantages of Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download, along with some popular platforms that offer these resources. One of the significant advantages of Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download is the cost-saving aspect. Traditional books and manuals can be costly, especially if you need to purchase several of them for educational or professional purposes. By accessing Forum Magazine Readers Letters versions, you eliminate the need to spend money on physical copies. This not only saves you money but also reduces the environmental impact associated with book production and transportation. Furthermore, Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download are incredibly convenient. With just a computer or smartphone and an internet connection, you can access a vast library of resources on any subject imaginable. Whether you're a student looking for textbooks, a professional seeking industry-specific manuals, or someone interested in self-improvement, these digital resources provide an efficient and accessible means of acquiring knowledge. Moreover, PDF books and manuals offer a range of benefits compared to other digital formats. PDF files are designed to retain their formatting regardless of the device used to open them. This ensures that the content appears exactly as intended by the author, with no loss of formatting or missing graphics. Additionally, PDF files can be easily annotated, bookmarked, and searched for specific terms, making them highly practical for studying or referencing. When it comes to accessing Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals, several platforms offer an extensive collection of resources. One such platform is Project Gutenberg, a nonprofit organization that provides over 60,000 free eBooks. These books are primarily in the public domain, meaning they can be freely distributed and downloaded. Project Gutenberg offers a wide range of classic literature, making it an excellent resource for literature enthusiasts. Another popular platform for Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals is Open Library. Open Library is an initiative of the Internet Archive, a non-profit organization dedicated to digitizing cultural artifacts and making them accessible to the public. Open Library hosts millions of books, including both public domain works and contemporary titles. It also allows users to borrow digital copies of certain books for a limited period, similar to a library lending system. Additionally, many universities and educational institutions have their own digital libraries that provide free access to PDF books and manuals. These libraries often offer academic texts, research papers, and technical manuals, making them invaluable resources for students and researchers. Some notable examples include MIT OpenCourseWare, which offers free access to course materials from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the Digital Public Library of America, which provides a vast collection of digitized books and historical documents. In conclusion, Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download have transformed the way we access information. They provide a cost-effective and convenient means of acquiring knowledge, offering the ability to access a vast library of resources at our fingertips. With platforms like Project Gutenberg, Open Library, and various digital libraries offered by educational institutions, we have access to an ever-expanding collection of books and manuals. Whether for educational, professional, or personal purposes, these digital resources serve as valuable tools for continuous learning and self-improvement. So why not take advantage of the vast world of Forum Magazine Readers Letters books and manuals for download and embark on your journey of knowledge?
