Writing Tip 5

There are five ways to begin an essay. One way is to use sound or motion words to set the stage for your writing.

Dear Parents,

Scratch, scratch, scratch! Know, know, know! This is the sound of your children thinking and growing. There are five ways to begin an essay. One of them is to use sound or motion words to set the stage for your writing.

Your Child's Teacher

We did this in class!

What is your favorite game? Write the introduction to an essay about your favorite.

Parents, please help!

Read with your child each week and discuss the writing on the other side of this assignment. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be a good example of the skill that is being taught. Use each assignment to help your child write a paragraph that would be a good example of the skill that is being taught.

Directions:

Authors often choose to begin their writing with sound and motion words so that they can set the mood for their writing.

Fun Fact! What sound did you hear when you read, "Scratch, scratch, scratch"? Did you think you were in the forest? Or did you think the writer was trying to be funny? Try to set a mood with your choice of sound or motion words.

1 What sound would you choose for a part? Why would you choose that sound?

2 Write a story about a time you made something.

This assignment is due at school on _____
