On Saudi Arabia Karen Elliott House,2012-09-18 From the Pulitzer Prize winning reporter who has spent the last thirty years writing about Saudi Arabia as diplomatic correspondent foreign editor and then publisher of The Wall Street Journal an important and timely book that explores all facets of life in this shrouded Kingdom its tribal past its complicated present its precarious future Through observation anecdote extensive interviews and analysis Karen Elliot House navigates the maze in which Saudi citizens find themselves trapped and reveals the mysterious nation that is the world s largest exporter of oil critical to global stability and a source of Islamic terrorists In her probing and sharp eyed portrait we see Saudi Arabia one of the last absolute monarchies in the world considered to be the final bulwark against revolution in the region as threatened by multiple fissures and forces its levers of power controlled by a handful of elderly Al Saud princes with an average age of 77 years and an extended family of some 7 000 princes Yet at least 60 percent of the increasingly restive population they rule is under the age of 20 The author writes that oil rich Saudi Arabia has become a rundown welfare state The public pays no taxes gets free education and health care and receives subsidized water electricity and energy a gallon of gasoline is cheaper in the Kingdom than a bottle of water with its petrodollars buying less and less loyalty House makes clear that the royal family also uses Islam s requirement of obedience to Allah and by extension to earthly rulers to perpetuate Al Saud rule

Behind the Saudi facade of order and obedience today's Saudi youth frustrated by social conformity are reaching out to one another and to a wider world beyond their cloistered country. Some 50 percent of Saudi youth is on the Internet. 5.1 million Saudis are on Facebook. To write this book the author interviewed most of the key members of the very private royal family. She writes about King Abdullah's modest efforts to relax some of the kingdom's most oppressive social restrictions: women are now allowed to acquire photo ID cards, finally giving them an identity independent from their male guardians and are newly able to register their own businesses but are still forbidden to drive and are barred from most jobs. With extraordinary access to Saudis from key religious leaders and dissident imams to women at university and impoverished widows from government officials and political dissidents to young successful Saudis and those who chose the path of terrorism, House argues that most Saudis do not want democracy but seek change nevertheless they want a government that provides basic services without subjecting citizens to the indignity of begging, princes for handouts, a government less corrupt and more transparent in how it spends hundreds of billions of annual oil revenue, a kingdom ruled by law not royal whim. In House's assessment of Saudi Arabia's future she compares the country today to the Soviet Union before Mikhail Gorbachev arrived with reform policies that proved too little too late after decades of stagnation under one aged and infirm Soviet leader after another. She discusses what the next generation of royal princes might bring and the choices the kingdom faces: continued economic and social stultification with growing risk of instability or an opening of society to individual initiative and enterprise with the risk that this too undermines the Al Saud hold on power. A riveting book, informed, authoritative, illuminating about a country that could well be on the brink and an in-depth examination of what all this portends for Saudi Arabia's future and for our own.

Scholars of Faith Usha Sanyal, 2020-06-12 Since the late twentieth century new institutions of Islamic learning for South Asian women and girls have emerged rapidly, particularly in urban areas and in the diaspora. This book reflects upon the increased access of Muslim girls and women to religious education and the purposes to which they seek to put their learning. Scholars of Faith is based on ethnographic fieldwork in two institutions of religious learning: the Jami'a Nur madrasa in Shahjahanpur, North India, and Al Huda International, an NGO that offers online courses on Islam, especially the Qur'an. In this monograph Sanyal argues that Islamic religious education in the early twenty-first century, particularly for women, is thoroughly modern and that this modernity reflected in both old and new interpretations of religious texts allows young South Asian women to evaluate their place in traditional structures of patriarchal authority in the public and private spheres in novel ways.

Sacred Space in Israel and Palestine Marshall Breger, Yitzhak Reiter, Leonard Hammer, 2013-06-19 Religion and religious nationalism have long played a central role in many ethnic and national conflicts, and the importance of religion to national identity means that territorial disputes can often focus on the contestation of holy places and sacred territory. Looking at the case of Israel and Palestine, this book highlights the nexus between religion and politics through the process of classifying holy places, giving them meaning, and interpreting their standing in religious and civil law within governmental policy and within international and local communities Written by a team of renowned scholars from within and outside the region this book follows on from Holy Places in the Israeli Palestinian Conflict Confrontation and Co existence to provide an insightful look into the politics of religion and space Examining Jerusalem s holy basin from a variety of perspectives and disciplines it provides unique insights into the way Jewish Christian and Muslim authorities scholars and jurists regard sacred space and the processes grass roots and official by which spaces become holy in the eyes of particular communities Filling an important gap in the literature on Middle East peacemaking the book will be of interest to scholars and students of the Middle East conflict conflict resolution political science urban studies and history of religion
