Bridges - English for Communication Sciences , Development of Modality in First Language Acquisition Ursula Stephany, Ayhan Aksu-Koç, 2021-03-08 This book deals with the development of modality from a crosslinguistic perspective and is closely related to two earlier volumes on the development of verb and nominal inflection in first language acquisition SOLA 21 and 30 both methodologically and theoretically Each of the fourteen contributions studies the early development of the form and function of expressions of deontic and dynamic agent oriented modality or epistemic and evidential propositional modality in one of fourteen languages belonging to different morphological types and language families seven Indo European and seven non Indo European The analyses are mainly based on longitudinal observations of children in their 2nd and 3rd years of life in conversational interaction with their caregivers mostly the mothers Main issues addressed are the development of directives and modulations of information in terms of certainty and evidentiality also taking into account children's developing social pragmatic and cognitive skills One of the main findings is that agent oriented and propositional modality may develop in parallel depending on the typological characteristics of the language acquired The decisive factor is whether notions of propositional modality are grammaticized and obligatorily expressed in the language The findings are interpreted within non nativist theoretical frameworks Usage based theories Natural Morphology

The forms and functions of modal verbs in sections of the English tourism research articles Domínguez Morales, María Elena, 2023-03-15 The tourism research article RA has not been the focus of many studies This volume offers a description of the genre in terms of section besides an analysis of the most used language features in each section of the RA Among these are the presence of modal verbs Precisely the goal of this work is to describe their use meaning and functions in a corpus of the introduction and conclusion sections of the RA in tourist studies The compilations included texts from leading journals in the area The method of inquiry includes corpus linguistics tools to analyze texts as well as specific examples to show how these forms behave in the RAs The analysis of context is also essential in order to identify the exact meanings of modal verbs and for that reason visual inspection of each sample is mandatory The discussion of the evidence obtained is accounted for by studies in the domain of functional linguistics The conclusions show that formal variation exists in the introduction and the conclusion sections This also applies to their meanings Dynamic modality is attested to be more recurrent in the introductions and epistemic modality is preferred in the concluding sections The functions performed by these modals are varied to feature interpersonal and textual cues in the elaboration of meaning in the RA Esta obra no tiene formato impreso y su descarga es libre sin DRM
