 wider societies in which they live The book extends debates on the inclusion and exclusion of Muslim minorities beyond ideas of marginalisation to show that while there have undoubtedly been increased incidences of Islamophobia since September 2001 some Muslim groups have played their own part in separating themselves from the wider society The cases examined show how these tendencies span geographical ethnic and gender divides and can be encouraged by a combination of international and national developments prompting some groups to identify wider society as the other Muslim and non Muslim scholars and practitioners in political science social work history and law also highlight positive outcomes in terms of Muslim activism with relationship to their respective countries and suggest ways in which increasing tensions felt perceived
