Functional Movement Development Across the Life Span Donna J. Cech, Suzanne Tink Martin, 2002-03-29

The 2nd edition of this expert text emphasizes normal development and function examining how function is attained and how it can be optimized across the life span Its logical organization and presentation equips readers with the background and tools needed to understand the components of functional movement A solid grounding in normal development including the cellular and systems changes that begin in the embryo and continue throughout life enables readers to recognize understand and appropriately treat abnormal motor function This new expanded edition features enhanced content related to development of specific age groups with a unique focus on the ongoing development of the healthy older adult Specifically the chapters dealing with the skeletal system the cardiovascular and pulmonary system and the nervous system have been extensively updated and more comprehensively illustrated Life-Span Development and Behavior David L.

Featherman,Richard M. Lerner,2019-05-24 The final volume in this significant series this publication mirrors the broad scientific attention given to ideas and issues associated with the life span perspective constancy and change in human development opportunities for and constraints on plasticity in structure and function across life the potential for intervention across the entire life course and thus for the creation of an applied developmental science individual differences diversity in life paths in contexts or the ecology of human development and in changing relations between people and contexts interconnections and discontinuities across age levels and developmental periods and the importance of integrating biological psychological social cultural and historical levels of organization in order to understand human development

The SAGE Encyclopedia of Lifespan Human Development Marc H. Bornstein,2018-01-15 Lifespan human development is the study of all aspects of biological physical cognitive socioemotional and contextual development from conception to the end of life In more than 800 signed articles by experts from a wide diversity of fields this volume explores all individual and situational factors related to human development across the lifespan The Encyclopedia promises to be an authoritative discipline defining work for students and researchers seeking to become familiar with various theories and empirical findings about human development broadly construed Some of the broad thematic areas will include Adolescence and Emerging Adulthood Aging Behavioral and Developmental Disorders Cognitive Development Community and Culture Early and Middle Childhood Education through the Lifespan Genetics and Biology Gender and Sexuality Life Events Mental Health through the Lifespan Research Methods in Lifespan Development Speech and Language Across the Lifespan Theories and Models of Development Featuring signed articles by experts from the fields of child development psychology neuroscience behavior analysis education sociology and more this five volume encyclopedia promises to be an authoritative discipline defining work for students and researchers seeking to become familiar with the various approaches to and theories of human development as well as past and current research Development of Person-context Relations Thomas A. Kindermann,Jaan

Valsiner,2013-06-17 Traditionally developmental psychology has its focus on individuals Developmentalists aim to describe regularities in individuals change and development across time to explain the processes and mechanisms that are involved in producing change and regularity and eventually to design strategies for optimization and modification of developmental pathways. Although the role of contexts has always been of central concern for these purposes it is nevertheless quite surprising to note that compared to the effort devoted to individuals relatively little attention has been paid to the study of the nature and organization of their contexts. This volume is an exploration of the idea that how we describe and explain human development will be closely tied to our understanding of what contexts are, how individuals and contexts become influential for one another, what contexts do to and with individuals and how contexts and their influences change themselves across time. A major theme is whether the traditional dichotomy between individuals and their contexts may be artificial, perhaps culturally biased, and after psychologists have adhered to it for about a century may have become an impediment to increasing our understanding of developmental processes. With this volume the editors contribute a serious consideration of development and systematic change to emerging models of person context relations and provide suggestions about how it may be possible to incorporate these notions in developmental research and theorizing.

The Handbook of Life-Span Development, Volume 2, 2010-08-09

In the past fifty years scholars of human development have been moving from studying change in humans within sharply defined periods to seeing many more of these phenomena as more profitably studied over time and in relation to other processes. The Handbook of Life Span Development Volume 2 Social and Emotional Development presents the study of human development conducted by the best scholars in the 21st century. Social workers, counselors, and public health workers will receive coverage of the social and emotional aspects of human change across the lifespan.

Handbook of Stressful Transitions Across the Lifespan Thomas W. Miller, 2009-11-28

This volume provides a unique and valuable contribution to our understanding of the impact of stressful life events and mass trauma on the person, the culture, and society in the course of the life span. It provides a comprehensive look at our psychological state of affairs at the beginning of the twenty-first century. There are several volumes that address some or most of these areas individually, but this volume is unique in that it has brought together theoreticians, researchers, and clinicians who address critical challenges in our lives. But we are now several months into the global financial crisis requiring a transition not only for the western world but for the third world. How on earth do families in trauma zones from Sri Lanka to Afghanistan, New Orleans to Gaza cope with similar declining older relatives with added traumas and zero medical resources attempt to survive? In news reports politicians and financiers denying the inevitable and struggling for solutions that cannot be relevant to the new reality that they have yet to discover.
