Cultural Perspectives on Food and Nutrition Marcy Schveibin, 1994

Community Nutrition for Developing Countries Norman J. Temple, Nelia Steyn, 2016-03-31 Nutrition textbooks used by universities and colleges in developing countries have very often been written by scholars who live and work in North America or the United Kingdom And while the research and information they present is sound the nutrition related health challenges with which developing countries must grapple differ considerably from those found in highly industrialized Western nations The primary aim of Community Nutrition for Developing Countries is to provide a book that meets the needs of nutritionists and other health professionals living and working in developing countries Written by both scholars and practitioners the volume draws on their wealth of knowledge experience and understanding of nutrition in developing countries to provide nutrition professionals with all the information they require Each chapter addresses a specific nutrition challenge currently faced by developing countries such as food security food safety disease prevention maternal health and effective nutrition policy In addition the volume serves as an invaluable resource for those developing and implementing nutrition education programmes With an emphasis on nutritional education as a means to prevent disease and effectively manage health disorders it is the hope of the nearly three dozen contributors to this work that it will enhance the health and well being of low income populations throughout the world

Food Tourism and Regional Development C. Michael Hall, Stefan Gössling, 2016-05-26 Food tourism is a topic of increasing importance for many destinations Seen as a means to potentially attract tourists and differentiate destinations and attractions by means of the association with particular products and cuisines food is also regarded as an opportunity to generate added value from tourism through local agricultural systems and supply chains and the local food system From a regional development perspective this book goes beyond culinary tourism to also look at some of the ways in which the interrelationships between food and tourism contribute to the economic environmental and social wellbeing of destinations communities and producers It examines the way in which tourism and food can mutually add value for each other from the fork to the plate and beyond Looking at products e g cheese craft beer noodles wine attractions restaurants and events and diverse regional examples e g Champagne Hong Kong Jamaica Margaret River southern Sweden and Tuscany the title highlights how clustering networking and the cultural economy of food and tourism and foodscapes adds value for regions Despite the attention given to food wine and culinary tourism no book has previously directly focused on the contribution of food and tourism in regional development This international collection has contributors and examples from almost every continent and provides a comprehensive account of the various intersections between food tourism and regional development This timely and significant volume will inform future food and tourism development as well as regional development more widely and will be valuable reading for a range of disciplines including tourism development studies food and culinary studies regional studies geography and environmental studies

Research on meals is also carried out in a wide range of fields and the different disciplines do not always benefit from each others expertise. This important collection presents contributions on meals from many perspectives using different methods and focusing on the different elements involved. Two introductory chapters in part one summarise the key findings in Dimensions of the Meal, the first book to bring an interdisciplinary perspective to meals and introduce the current publication by reviewing the key topics discussed in the following chapters. Parts two to four then consider how meals are defined, studied and taught. Major considerations include eating socially and eating alone, the influence of gender and the different situations of home, restaurant and institutional settings. Part five reviews meals worldwide with chapters on Brazilian, Indian, Chinese and Thai meals among others. The final parts discuss meals from further perspectives including those of the chef, product developer and meal setting designer. With its distinguished editor and international team of contributors, Meals in science and practice is an informative and diverse reference for both professionals and academic researchers interested in food from disciplines such as food product development, food service, nutrition, dietetics, sociology, anthropology, psychology, public health, medicine and marketing. Summarises key findings in dimensions of the meal. Considers how meals are defined, studied and taught including eating alone and socially and the influence of gender. Reviews the meaning of meals in different cultures.
