

A black and white photograph showing the silhouettes of four people in a rural landscape. On the left, a woman in a sari stands with her back to the camera. In the center, a young child stands holding a bucket. To the right of the child, a hand-operated water pump is shown with water being dispensed into a large pot. Further right, another woman in a sari is operating the pump's handle. On the far right, a small child stands holding a bowl. The background shows a flat, open field under a cloudy sky. The overall mood is one of daily life and community effort in a rural setting.
