Non-native Educators in English Language Teaching George Braine,2013-10-08 The place of native and non native speakers in the role of English teachers has probably been an issue ever since English was taught internationally Although ESL and EFL literature is awash in fact dependent upon the scrutiny of non native learners interest in non native academics and teachers is fairly new Until recently the voices of non native speakers articulating their own concerns have been even rarer This book is a response to this notable vacuum in the ELT literature providing a forum for language educators from diverse geographical origins and language backgrounds In addition to presenting autobiographical narratives these authors argue sociopolitical issues and discuss implications for teacher education all relating to the theme of non native educators in ETL All of the authors are non native speakers of English Some are long established professionals whereas others are more recent initiates to the field All but one received part of the higher education in North America and all except two of the chapters are at least partially contextualized in North America Particularly relevant for non native speakers who aspire to enter the profession graduate students in TESOL programs and teacher educators the unique nature of this book s contributors and its contents will interest researchers and professionals in applied linguistics generally and in ELT and all those who are concerned with the role of non native speakers in English language teaching Review ,1985

Congressional Record ,1893 Speech Rhythm in Varieties of English Robert Fuchs,2015-09-25 This book addresses the question whether Educated Indian English is more syllable timed than British English from two standpoints production and perception Many post colonial varieties of English which are mostly spoken as a second language in countries such as India Nigeria and the Philippines are thought to have a syllable timed rhythm whereas first language varieties such as British English are characterized as being stress timed While previous studies mostly relied on a single acoustic correlate of speech rhythm usually duration the author proposes a multidimensional approach to the production of speech rhythm that takes into account various acoustic correlates The results reveal that the two varieties differ with regard to a number of dimensions such as duration sonority intensity loudness pitch and glottal stop insertion The second part of the study addresses the question whether the difference in speech rhythm between Indian and British English is perceptually relevant based on intelligibility and dialect discrimination experiments The results reveal that speakers generally find the rhythm of their own variety more intelligible and that listeners can identify which variety a speaker is using on the basis of differences in speech rhythm
