Clarity, Cut, and Culture Susan Falls, 2014-06-13 Images of diamonds appear everywhere in American culture And everyone who has a diamond has a story to tell about it Our stories about diamonds not only reveal what we do with these tiny stones but also suggest how we create value meaning and identity through our interactions with material culture in general Things become meaningful through our interactions with them but how do people go about making meaning What can we learn from an ethnography about the production of identity creation of kinship and use of diamonds in understanding selves and social relationships By what means do people positioned within a globalized political economy and a compelling universe of advertising interact locally with these tiny polished rocks This book draws on 12 months of fieldwork with diamond consumers in New York City as well as an analysis of the iconic De Beers campaign that promised romance status and glamour to anyone who bought a diamond to show that this thematic pool is just one resource among many that diamond owners draw upon to engage with their own stones The volume highlights the important roles that memory context and circumstance also play in shaping how people interpret and then use objects in making personal worlds It shows that besides operating as subjects in an ad burdened universe consumers are highly creative idiosyncratic and theatrical agents
