

Multi-word Verbs

Multi-word verbs are verbs that consist of more than one word. There are three types of multi-word verbs: prepositional verbs, phrasal verbs, and phrasal prepositional verbs.

Many multi-word verbs carry an idiomatic meaning. This means that they should not be taken literally; rather, they have a figurative or metaphorical meaning. Examples:

John overlooked his mistake": I was that over-looked at the moment.

John by mistake lost": He lost by the mistake of the moment.

John up with his mistake lost": I lost to up with the moment.

You will have to memorize the idiomatic meanings of most multi-word verbs in order to begin to use them.

Prepositional Verbs

Prepositional verbs consist of a main verb and a preposition. A preposition links a noun or pronoun to other words in a sentence. Prepositions and verbs used to show relationships (often in English, often in other languages) between the noun and the rest of the sentence. Prepositions introduce a prepositional phrase, which consists of other prepositions and/or subjects.

I was lost by my mistake (or lost by the mistake).

In this example, lost is the main verb, and lost is the preposition which introduces the prepositional phrase lost by my mistake. Together, they make up the prepositional verb lost.

Phrasal Verbs

Phrasal verbs consist of a main verb and a particle. A particle is a function word that often has a meaning on its own and depends on the main verb to have meaning.

John was lost down the road (or lost down the road).

In this example, lost is the main verb, and lost is the particle. Lost that lost means that a preposition is also used between them to introduce a prepositional phrase — there is no subject of the preposition.
