Brown, Cori Crane, Beatrice C. Dupuy, Estela Ene, 2025-06-30 Second language program development and administration is a long standing area within the larger field of applied linguistics In many ways it is the quintessential applied linguistics field as it crosses disciplinary boundaries while balancing the rigors of scholarly inquiry with the demands of practical application without losing sight of concrete learner outcomes The Routledge Handbook of Language Program Development and Administration provides a scholarly rigorous yet practically relevant treatment of issues implicated in program development and administration with 52 chapters written by leading scholars in the field Authors not only address the theoretical underpinnings of their respective topics but also provide actionable evidence based recommendations concerning eminently practical matters In this way the volume provides both novice and experienced language program administrators with important guidance on how to think about the work that they do and how best to go about it while also validating language program administration as a scholarly area of inquiry The Routledge Handbook of Language Program Development and Administration is essential reading for practicing second language program administrators at the post secondary level in service and pre service second language instructors graduate students in applied linguistics and even upper level undergraduate education students considering second language teaching as a future career

Knowledge of Reflexives in a Second Language Margaret Thomas,1993-10-28 This study addresses the debate about whether adult language learners have access to the principles and parameters of universal grammar in constructing the grammar of a second language The data are based on two related experiments The first examines the interpretation of English reflexive pronouns by native speakers of Japanese and of Spanish The second experiment examines the interpretation of the Japanese reflexive zibun by native speakers of English and of Chinese Three hypotheses are evaluated a that UG is unavailable and that processing strategies or other non linguistic principles guide second language acquisition b that UG is available only in the form in which it is instantiated in the learner s native language c that UG is fully available including the ability to re set parameters to UG sanctioned values not instantiated in the learner s native language The results show that learners observe constraints defined by Manzini and Wexler s parameterized version of Principle A of the binding theory and support the proposal that adult learners have access to universal grammar A final chapter reviews the experimental data in the light of recent accounts of cross linguistic variation in the grammar of anaphors which reject parameterization of the binding principles in favor of a movement to INFL analysis Resources in Education ,2001
