2016 Passenger Car and 2015 Concept Car Yearbook Automotive Engineering International, 2015-12-15 Carmakers release new models every year with advanced technology to attract consumer interest and to satisfy increasingly stringent government regulations Some of these technologies are firsts or leading edge and they start trends that more companies will soon follow Snapshots of the direction of the automotive industry along with OEM and supplier perspectives are presented in these articles that have been collected by the Editors of Automotive Engineering whose aim is to provide the reader with a complete overview of the key advances that took place over the course of one model year Provides a single source for information on the key engineering trends of one year Allows the reader to skip to chapters that cover specific car models that interest them or read about all models from beginning to end Includes plenty of big full color images and the facts about the most recent technology and engineering innovations Each car manufacturer has its own chapter exploring new models in depth The yearly trends and innovations that make the automotive industry fascinating to both the engineer and the customer are all captured in the imagery and easy reading of this full color book Buying a Safer Car for Child

Passengers 2005 ,2005 Solar Powered Charging Infrastructure for Electric Vehicles Larry E. Erickson, Jessica Robinson, Gary Brase, Jackson Cutsor, 2016-10-14 The Paris Agreement on Climate Change adopted on December 12 2015 is a voluntary effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions In order to reach the goals of this agreement there is a need to generate electricity without greenhouse gas emissions and to electrify transportation An infrastructure of SPCSs can help accomplish both of these transitions Globally expenditures associated with the generation transmission and use of electricity are more than one trillion dollars per year Annual transportation expenditures are also more than one trillion dollars per year Almost everyone will be impacted by these changes in transportation solar power generation and smart grid developments The benefits of reducing greenhouse gas emissions will differ with location but all will be impacted This book is about the benefits associated with adding solar panels to parking lots to generate electricity reduce greenhouse gas emissions and provide shade and shelter from rain and snow The electricity can flow into the power grid or be used to charge electric vehicles EVs Solar powered charging stations SPCSs are already in many parking lots in many countries of the world The prices of solar panels have decreased recently and about 30% of the new U S electrical generating capacity in 2015 was from solar energy More than one million EVs are in service in 2016 and there are significant benefits associated with a convenient charging infrastructure of SPCSs to support transportation with electric vehicles Solar Powered Charging Infrastructure for Electric Vehicles A Sustainable Development aims to share information on pathways from our present situation to a world with a more sustainable transportation system with EVs SPCSs a modernized smart power grid with energy storage reduced greenhouse gas emissions and better urban air quality Covering 200 million parking spaces with solar panels can generate about 1 4 of the electricity that was generated in 2014 in the United States Millions of EVs with 20 to 50 kWh of battery storage can help with the transition to wind and solar power generation through owners responding to time of use prices Written for all audiences high school and college teachers and students those in industry and government and those involved in community issues will benefit by learning more about the topics addressed in the book Those working with electrical power and transportation who will be in the middle of the transition will want to learn about all of the challenges and developments that are addressed here Electric vehicles roll-out in Europe Friðrik Már Baldursson,Ewa Lazarczyk Carlson,Nils-Henrik M. von der Fehr,2019-10-16 This report provides a timely contribution to the search for concrete responses on how to successfully complete and manage the roll out of electric vehicles in Europe For this purpose the report presents case studies of three countries Norway and the Netherlands where market penetration of electric vehicles is already comparatively high as well as Luxembourg which is an interesting case from a regulatory perspective The Three Case Studies Norway has some unique characteristics that are important for the study of how electric vehicles affect the electricity system On the one hand the penetration of electric vehicles is higher in Norway than anywhere else in Europe On the other hand thanks to the availability of cheap hydropower the Norwegian electricity system has been designed to support electric space heating in a cold climate Hence it has been able to accommodate high levels of electric vehicle penetration even with relatively light handed regulation on location and capacity of charging infrastructure The unique characteristics of Norway make it difficult to generalise its experience Nevertheless it does suggest that electric vehicles can be accommodated by electricity systems given reasonable levels of penetration and sufficient time to respond to the resulting demand for electricity The Netherlands already has a well developed network of charging points The base for charging is provided by private charging points either at home or at work Semi public chargers with limited access are also an important category that is growing quickly Public chargers are often deployed through a demand driven approach and this method of providing charging infrastructure where there is not enough private parking and therefore a lack of private charging is an option used particularly in cities The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg is a small still developing system in terms of the number of electric vehicles Luxembourg has organised the development of its charging infrastructure centrally and the main public charging network is owned by distribution companies Due to its location the Duchy cooperates with the Netherlands and Belgium to facilitate the usage of electric vehicles in the region so that users of electric vehicles can charge their cars in any station belonging to the three networks Looking at the three cases Luxembourg has taken a somewhat different approach to creating a charging infrastructure for electric vehicles than the other two countries studied There responsibility for ensuring the deployment of the necessary infrastructure has been vested with electricity network companies who have produced a comprehensive national scheme based on public tenders to ensure a timely rollout Given the relatively low numbers of both electric vehicles and charging points in the country to date it is however not yet clear how well this approach is working especially compared to the alternative pursued in the Netherlands and Norway Both the Netherlands and Norway have adopted more decentralised approaches to charging infrastructure However in both countries such infrastructure has developed in line with the fleet of electric vehicles and charging facilities do not seem to be an obstacle to further growth of the fleet The Norwegian experience is perhaps of particular interest given the unusually high penetration of electric vehicles there The fact that distribution networks are guaranteed financing of necessary upgrades from users has clearly played a part in facilitating the connection of charging points The Netherlands has developed more of a bottom up approach to account for the fact that a large proportion of people live in multi home dwellings without access to a garage or a private parking space Policy implications For the rise of electric vehicles to go smoothly it is crucial that the right incentives and market structures be in place One of the challenges for distribution system operators is to ensure that charging mostly takes place during off peak hours Time of use pricing is a possible option for shifting general demand for charging at or near homes from peak to off peak hours However this may not suffice to solve the localised problems in distribution networks A change in regulation rather than a change in the tariff and pricing structure could be more appropriate in certain cases Electric vehicles or rather their batteries could also potentially provide important storage and flexibility in a decarbonised energy system based in large part on renewable energy sources While time of use tariffs and pricing or command and control regulation would be the appropriate tools to shift charging demand to off peak hours they will not be sufficient to exploit the full potential of electric vehicles as storage One challenge in this regard is simply having enough charging or de charging points for parked vehicles

The Truth About Energy John K. White, 2024-02-08 The transition to renewable energy is vital and fast paced but how do we choose which technologies to drive this energy transition This timely book provides everyone interested in the renewable energy transition with an introduction to and technical foundation for understanding modern energy technology It traces everyday power generation through history from the Industrial Revolution to today It examines the use of wood coal oil natural gas hydro and nuclear to produce energy before discussing renewable energy sources such as biomass photovoltaics concentrated solar power wind wave and geothermal The book examines to what extent and how each technology can contribute to a clean green infrastructure The Truth About Energy explains the science and engineering of energy to help everyone understand and compare current and future advances in renewable energy providing the context to critically examine the different technologies that are competing in a fast evolving engineering political and economic landscape
