Research in Basic Writing Martin Jacobi,Michael G. Moran,1990-02-15 This reference handbook surveys research on the central issue associated with the teaching of unprepared writers Though basic writing has only been recognized as a distinct area of teaching and research since 1975 the existing bibliographic texts already seem limited due to their age or lack of annotation This volume provides current and extensive bibliographic essays and will help to define this new field of study for teachers and researchers Following an introduction that summarizes the origins and significant texts in basic writing the book is divided into three sections Social Science Perspectives Linguistic Perspectives and Pedagogical Perspectives The first section which contains three essays views the field through the lens of social psychological and political issues The second section also containing three essays examines contributions made from studies of grammar dialects and second language acquisition The third section in its four essays focuses on the design development administration and evaluation of basic writing courses the use of computers in basic writing classrooms the role of the writing lab and the preparation of basic writing teachers An appendix that reviews current textbooks for basic writing courses is also included as well as an index This book will be a valuable resource for teachers of basic writing in education courses and workshops that train teachers and tutors and in fields such as linguistics technical writing and Teaching English as a Second Language It will also be an important addition to public and university libraries and many education programs Proceedings of the 19th lower student to computer and student to printer ratios They also had greater Internet access Furthermore private schools tended to expose their students to computers at practically all educational levels The study provided baseline data that was not previously available The researcher identifies the need for similar studies with greater geographic scope or of a longitudinal nature deeper investigations of curricular gaps or policy issues and the development of instructional software for Filipino specific subject areas Internet-based Workplace Communications Kirk St. Amant,Pavel Zemliansky,2005-01-01

The essays in this collection advance the project of articulating online workplaces as real and significant as complex networks of relations that we need to take seriously The emergent culture of networked communication poses many interesting challenges for researchers teachers and writers In an emergent culture even the terminologies we use to identify the subject are contested making it difficult to agree on what we re writing about in the first place not to mention our reasons for studying it or how we might best meet the challenges it poses Statistical Abstract of the United States ,1996
