Archaeological Oceanography Robert D. Ballard, 2021-09-14 Archaeological Oceanography is the definitive book on the newly emerging field of deep sea archaeology Marine archaeologists have been finding and excavating underwater shipwrecks since at least the early 1950s but until recently their explorations have been restricted to depths considered shallow by oceanographic standards This book describes the latest advances that enable researchers to probe the secrets of the deep ocean and the vital contributions these advances offer to archaeology and fields like maritime history and anthropology Renowned oceanographer Robert Ballard who stunned the world with his discovery of the Titanic deep in the North Atlantic has gathered together the pioneers of archaeological oceanography a cross disciplinary group of archaeologists oceanographers ocean engineers and anthropologists who have undertaken ambitious expeditions into the deep sea In this book they discuss the history of archaeological oceanography and the evolution and use of advanced deep submergence technology to locate and excavate ancient and modern shipwrecks and cultural and other sites deep under water They offer examples from their own expeditions and explain the challenges future programs face in obtaining access to the resources needed to carry out this important and exciting research The contributors are Robert D Ballard Ali Can Dwight F Coleman Mike J Durbin Ryan Eustace Brendan Foley Cathy Giangrande Todd S Gregory Rachel L Horlings Jonathan Howland Kevin McBride James B Newman Dennis Piechota Oscar Pizarro Christopher Roman Hanumant Singh Cheryl Ward

Sim, Hwee Hwang Sim, 2021-02-20 This book addresses the topic of humanities education fieldwork using the Singapore context as its primary focus. It explores how the thought processes behind and techniques of various humanities and social sciences subjects can be applied to fieldwork in a variety of school and training settings. In addition, it discusses how humanities students and educators could stand to benefit from utilizing fieldwork techniques and skills used in archaeology and anthropology beyond undergraduates majoring in that discipline. Finally, the adoption of multidisciplinary approaches in fieldwork incorporating history, geography, literature, and social studies demonstrate how these subjects can collaborate together in actual case studies to facilitate participants' learning in the field.

Maritime Archaeology Lawrence E. Babits, Hans Van Tilburg, 2013-11-11 This volume initiates a new series of books on maritime or underwater archaeology and as the editor of the series I welcome its appearance with great excitement. It is appropriate that the first book of the series is a collection of articles intended for graduate or undergraduate courses in underwater archaeology since the growth in academic opportunities for students is an important sign of the vitality of this subdiscipline. The layman will enjoy the book as well. Academic and public interest in shipwrecks and other submerged archaeological sites is indicated by a number of factors. Every year there are 80 to 90 research papers presented at the Society for Historical Archaeology's Conference on Historical and Underwater Archaeology and the Proceedings are published. Public interest is shown by extensive press coverage of shipwreck investigations. One of the most important advances in recent years has been the passage of the Abandoned Shipwreck Act of 1987 for the first time providing national level law concerning underwater archaeological sites. The legislation has withstood a number of legal challenges by commercial treasure salvors, a very hopeful sign for the long-term preservation of this nonrenewable type of cultural resource. The underwater archaeological discoveries of 1995 were particularly noteworthy. The Texas Historical Commission discovered the Belle, one of La Salle's ships, and the CSS Hunley was found by a joint project of South Carolina and a private nonprofit organization called NUMA.
