Wordplay and Translation Dirk Delabastita,2016-04-29 Popular and multimodal forms of cultural products are becoming increasingly visible within translation studies research Interest in translation and music however has so far been relatively limited mainly because translation of musical material has been considered somewhat outside the limits of translation studies as traditionally conceived. Difficulties associated with issues such as the musicality of lyrics, the fuzzy boundaries between translation, adaptation and rewriting, and the pervasiveness of covert or unacknowledged translations of musical elements in a variety of settings have generally limited the research in this area to overt and canonized translations such as those done for the opera. Yet the intersection of translation and music can be a fascinating field to explore and one which can enrich our understanding of what translation is and how it relates to other forms of expression. This special issue is an attempt to open up the field of translation and music to a wider audience within translation studies and to an extent within musicology and cultural studies. The volume includes contributions from a wide range of musical genres and languages from those that investigate translation and code switching in North African rap and rai and the intertextual and intersemiotic translations revolving around Mahler's lieder in Chinese to the appropriation and after life of Kurdish folk songs in Turkish and the emergence of rock n roll in Russian. Other papers examine the reception of Anglo American stage musicals and musical films in Italy and Spain, the concept of singability with examples from Scandinavian languages and the French dubbing of musical episodes of TV series. The volume also offers an annotated bibliography on opera translation and a general bibliography on translation and music.

Holden's Manual of the Dissection of the Human Body Edited by Luther Holden and John Langton
Luther Holden, 1868      Advances in Collective Intelligence 2011 Jörn Altmann, Ulrike Baumöl, Bernd Krämer, 2012-01-12

Collective intelligence has become an attractive subject of interest for both academia and industry. More and more conferences and workshops discuss the impact of the users' motivation to participate in the value creation process, the enabling role of leading edge information and communication technologies and the need for better algorithms to deal with the growing amount of shared data. There are many interesting and challenging topics that need to be researched and discussed with respect to knowledge creation, creativity and innovation processes carried forward in the emerging communities of practice. COLLIN is on the path to become the flagship conference in the areas of collective intelligence and ICT enabled social networking. We were delighted to again receive contributions from different parts of the world including Australia, Europe, Asia and the United States. Encouraged by the positive response, we plan COLLIN 2012 to be held next year end of August at FernUniversität in Hagen. In order to guarantee the quality of the event, each paper went through a double-blind review process. The reviews concentrated on originality, quality and relevance of the paper topic to the symposium. In addition, we invited a few renowned experts in the field to contribute to the success of the symposium with outstanding papers reporting on their most recent research. Our special thanks go to the authors for submitting their papers to the international program committee members and to numerous reviewers who did an excellent job in guaranteeing that the papers in this volume are of very high quality.
