as a positive sum game in which countries and businesses benefit from building ties across geographic space rather than the zero sum game implied by the global war for talent and brain drain metaphors. The book empirically demonstrates its thesis by examination of the case of Korea a state archetypical of those that have been embracing economic globalization while facing a demographic crisis and one where the dominant narrative on the recruitment of skilled foreigners is largely negative It reveals the unique benefits that foreign students and professionals can provide to Korea by enhancing Korean firms competitiveness in the global marketplace and by generating new jobs for Korean citizens rather than taking them away As this research and its key findings are relevant to other advanced societies that seek to utilize skilled foreigners for economic development the arguments made in this book offer insights that extend well beyond the Korean experience The Living Church .1954 Hearings United States.
