Ecological Time Series Thomas M. Powell, John H. Steele, 2012-12-06 This book results from a summer school held at Cornell University in 1992 The participants were graduate students and postdoctoral researchers selected from a broad range of interests and backgrounds in ecological studies The summer school was the second in a continuing series whose underlying aim and the aim of this volume is to bring together the different methods and concepts underpinning terrestrial freshwater and marine ecology The first volume in the series focused on patch dynamics in these three ecological sectors Here we have endeavored to complement that volume by extending its comparative approach to the consideration of ecological time series The types of data and the methods of collection are necessarily very different in these contrasting environments yet the underlying concept and the technical problems of analysis have much in common It proved to be of great interest and value to the summer school participants to see the differences and then work through to an appreciation of the generalizable concepts We believe that such an approach must have value as well for a much larger audience and we have structured this volume to provide a comparable reading experience

Chimpanzee Memoirs Stephen Ross, Lydia Hopper, 2022-05-10. Chimpanzees fascinate people for many reasons. We are struck by the apes' resemblance to humanity as seen in their use of tools and their complex social lives, and we are moved by the threats that human activity poses to them. Our awareness of our closest living relatives testifies to the efforts of the remarkable people who study these creatures and work to protect them. What motivates someone to dedicate their lives to chimpanzees? How does that reflect on our own species? This book brings together a range of chimpanzee experts who tell powerful personal stories about their lives and careers. It features some of the world's preeminent primatologists, including Jane Goodall and Frans de Waal, as well as representatives of a new generation from varied backgrounds. In addition to field scientists, the book features anthropologists, biologists, psychologists, veterinarians, conservationists, and the director of a chimpanzee sanctuary. Some grew up in the English countryside; others in villages in Congo; some first encountered chimpanzees in a zoo; others in the forests surrounding their homes. All are united by a common purpose: to study and understand chimpanzees in order to protect them in the wild and care for them in zoos and sanctuaries. Contributors share what inspired them, what shaped their career choices, and what motivates them to strive for solutions to the many challenges that chimpanzees face today.
