Reading Strategies Worksheet
Sometimes when you are reading, you must "read between the lines," or infer what the meaning of an unfamiliar word is. This process is called making an inference.

Questions: Read the following paragraph and try to infer the meaning of the underlined words.

"Optimism in life, things can get hard and complicated, and it's normal for us to feel a little sad sometimes. But it's in these moments that our nature gets tested, and it's really important to have a good strategy in place. People who are good at dealing with complex situations with grace often make excellent leaders and advisors. On the other hand, there are some people who are cynical, who don't believe in positive outcomes. They might think any success is just a stroke of luck or a coincidence, without acknowledging the effort and dedication put into it. In our complex world, life doesn't always follow a straight path, and sometimes the unexpected, which can lead to great future things. Most of us handle these situations when challenges either are resolved or fail."

What does "cynical" mean in the paragraph above?

Circle the word closest in meaning to hyper as used in the paragraph above.

- Circle the word closest to reaching.

The best mapping for Perceptron learning is a decision boundary. It separates the space into two regions, one of which is labeled "positive" and the other "negative". The decision boundary is a linear function of the input features. The Perceptron learning algorithm finds a decision boundary that correctly classifies the training data.

The study found impressive and statistically significant evidence that the average height and weight of men in the United States has increased over the past 50 years. The average height of men in the United States in 1960 was 5 feet 7 inches, and the average weight was 150 pounds. By 2010, the average height had increased to 5 feet 9 inches, and the average weight had increased to 180 pounds. This increase in height and weight is likely due to a combination of factors, including improved nutrition, increased physical activity, and changes in the genetic makeup of the population.
