Dilemma Of A Ghost:

Binding Cultures Gay Wilentz, 1992-05-22 Wilentz makes convincing arguments for the connections between African and Afro American women's culture. Nellie McKay Wilentz's jargon-free intelligent discussion will appeal to students in African American and women's literature courses as well as general readers interested in the emerging field. Choice Through these works Wilentz demonstrates the powerful transformation possible through understanding and embracing the past even if that past includes oppression and brutalization. Belles Lettres Binding Cultures investigates the cultural bonds between African and African American women writers such as Nigerian Flora Nwapa and Ghanaians Efua Sutherland and Ama Ata Aidoo writers who focus on the role of women in passing on cultural values to future generations and African American writers Alice Walker Toni Morrison and Paule Marshall who self-consciously evoke African culture to help create a more integrated African American community.

Our Mothers, Our Powers, Our Texts Teresa N. Washington, 2005-06-27 Washington writes supple and thoughtful prose and creatively integrates African and African-derived terminology which never distracts the reader. I consider Our Mothers Our Powers Our Texts not only a brilliant study but also a model to be emulated. Ouseynou B Traore William Patterson University, J is a Yoruba word that signifies a spiritual power of vast potential as well as the human beings who exercise that power. Although both men and women can have it, its owners and controllers are women, the literal and cosmic Mothers who are revered as the gods of society. Because of its association with female power, its invisibility and profundity, it is often misconstrued as witchcraft. However, as Teresa N. Washington points out in Our Mothers Our Powers Our Texts, it is central to the Yoruba ethos and cosmology. Not only does it underpin the concepts of creation and creativity but as a force of justice and retribution, it is essential to social harmony and balance. As Africans were forced into exile and enslavement, they took it with them and continued its work of creating, destroying, harming, and healing in the New World. Washington seeks out its subversive power of creation and re-creation in a diverse range of African texts from both men and women from both oral and contemporary literature and across space and time. She guides readers to an understanding of the symbolic, methodological, and spiritual issues that are central to important works by African writers but are rarely elucidated by Western criticism. She begins with an examination of the ancient forms of it in Yoruba culture which creates a framework for innovative readings of important works by African writers including Zora Neale Hurston Toni Morrison Ben Okri Wole Soyinka Jamaica Kincaid and Ntozake Shange. This rich analysis will appeal to readers of African literature, African religion and philosophy, feminist studies, and comparative literature.

Middle Passages and the Healing Place of History Elizabeth Brown-Guillory, 2006 Middle Passages and the Healing Place of History: Migration and Identity in Black Women's Literature brings together a series of essays addressing black women's fragmented identities and quests for wholeness. The individual essays concern culturally specific experiences of blacks in select African countries, England, the Caribbean, the United States, and Canada. They examine identity struggles by establishing the Middle Passage as the first site of identity rupture and the subsequent break from cultural and historical moorings In most cases the authors themselves have migrated from their places of origin to new spaces that present challenges Their narratives replicate the displacement engendered by their own experiences of living with the complexities of diasporic existence Their female characters many of whom participate in multiple border crossings work to define themselves within a hostile environment In nearly every essay the female characters struggle against multiple yokes of oppression giving voice to what it means to be black female poor old and alone The subjects migrations and journeys are analyzed as attempts to heal the displacement both physical and psychological that results from dislocation and relocation from the homeland imagined variously as Africa This volume reveals that black women across the globe share a common ground fraught with struggles but the narratives bear out that these women are not easily divided and that they stand upon each other s shoulders dispensing healing balms Black women s history and herstory commingle the trauma that ensued when Africans were loaded onto ships in chains continues to haunt black women and men too wherever they find themselves in this present moment of the Diaspora

Changes Ama Ata Aidoo,1993 Changes explores the complex world in which the lives of professional working women have changed sharply but the cultural assumptions of men s lives have not Witty and compelling Aidoo s novel according to Manthia Diawara inaugurates a new realist style in African literature Aidoo writes with intense power in a novel that in examining the role of women in modern African society also sheds light on women s problems around the globe Publishers Weekly starred review Suggested for course use in African literature African studies Family Studies Ama Ata Aidoo one of Ghana s most distinguished writers is the author of two other works of fiction Our Sister Killjoy and No Sweetness Here The Feminist Press as well as plays poems and children s books Tuzyline Jita Allan is associate professor of English at Baruch College CUNY

Africans and Americans: Embracing Cultural Differences Joseph Mbele,2005 This book discusses differences between African and American culture to help prevent cultural miscommunications which might poison or ruin relationships between Africans and Americans I am lucky to have lived in both Africa and America and I feel privileged and obliged to share my views and experiences with others
