Environmental Transformations A Geography Of The Anthropocene:

Environmental Transformations Mark Whitehead, 2014-04-16 From the depths of the oceans to the highest reaches of the atmosphere the human impact on the environment is significant and undeniable These forms of global and local environmental change collectively appear to signal the arrival of a new geological epoch the Anthropocene This is a geological era defined not by natural environmental fluctuations or meteorite impacts but by collective actions of humanity Environmental Transformations offers a concise and accessible introduction to the human practices and systems that sustain the Anthropocene It combines accounts of the carbon cycle global heat balances entropy hydrology forest ecology and pedology with theories of demography war industrial capitalism urban development state theory and behavioural psychology This book charts the particular role of geography and geographers in studying environmental change and its human drivers It provides a review of critical theories that can help to uncover the socio economic and political factors that influence environmental change It also explores key issues in contemporary environmental studies such as resource use water scarcity climate change industrial pollution and deforestation These issues are mapped through a series of geographical case studies to illustrate the particular value of geographical notions of space place and scale in uncovering the complex nature of environmental change in different socio economic political and cultural contexts Finally the book considers the different ways in which nations communities and individuals around the world are adapting to environmental change in the twenty first century Particular attention is given throughout to the uneven geographical opportunities that different communities have to adapt to environmental change and to the questions of social justice this situation raises This book encourages students to engage in the scientific uncertainties that surround the study of environmental change while also discussing both pessimistic and more optimistic views on the ability of humanity to address the environmental challenges of our current era The Soviet Union and Global Environmental Change Jonathan D. Oldfield, 2021-05-26 This book argues that the Soviet Union was a highly influential actor in furthering understandings of society nature interaction on the international stage and played a key role in helping to shape conceptualize and assess the relationship between humankind and the Earth system It considers how humankind s capacity to affect physical and biological systems at a global scale was acknowledged and studied by Soviet scientists discusses how the interaction between Soviet and Western scientists stimulated the development of new technologies and insights which simultaneously facilitated a more profound understanding of the Earth s physical and biological systems and explores how Soviet scientists drew upon pre revolutionary intellectual traditions in order to make sense of society nature interaction and did so in collaboration with a range of international initiatives Overall the book provides a deep analysis of how Soviet scientists conceptualized society nature interaction and influenced the understanding of global physical and biological systems Furthermore it is argued that this intellectual legacy remains of importance today with respect to the activities of Russian science and contemporary global environmental challenges The Organisation of the Anthropocene Jorge E. Viñuales, 2018-07-03 In The Organisation of the Anthropocene J E Viñuales explores the legal dimensions of the currently advocated new geological epoch called the Anthropocene in which humans are the defining force. He examines in this context two basic propositions: First, law as a technology of social organisation has been neglected in the otherwise highly technology-focused accounts by natural and social scientists of the drivers of the Anthropocene. Secondly, in those rare instances where law has been discussed, there is a tendency to assume that the role of law is to tackle the negative externalities of transactions, e.g. their environmental or social implications, rather than the core of the underlying transactions, i.e. the organisation of production and consumption processes. Such focus on externalities fails to unveil the role of law in prompting, sustaining and potentially managing the processes that have led to the Anthropocene. Hope and Grief in the Anthropocene Lesley Head, 2016-02-22 The Anthropocene is a volatile and potentially catastrophic age demanding new ways of thinking about relations between humans and the nonhuman world. This book explores how responses to environmental challenges are hampered by a grief for a pristine and certain past rather than considering the scale of the necessary socioeconomic change for a future world. Conceptualisations of human nature relations must recognise both human power and its embeddedness within material relations. Hope is a risky and complex process of possibility that carries painful emotions; it is something to be practised rather than felt. As centralised governmental solutions regarding climate change appear insufficient, intellectual and practical resources can be derived from everyday understandings and practices. Empirical examples from rural and urban contexts and with diverse research participants: indigenous communities, climate scientists, weed managers, suburban householders help us to consider capacity, vulnerability and hope in new ways. Räumliche Transformation Milad Abassiharofteh, Jessica Baier, Angelina Göb, Insa Thimm, Andreas Eberth, Falco Knaps, Vilja Larjosto, Fabiana Zebner, 2019-09-09 Was kann unter räumlicher Transformation verstanden werden, wie zeigt sie sich und wodurch zeichnen sich Transformationsprozesse eigentlich aus? Dieser Forschungsbericht setzt an diesen Fragen an und stellt aktuelle Forschungsprojekte und Herangehensweisen aus wissenschaftlicher und planungspraktischer Perspektive dar. Ein zentraler Bezugspunkt ist dabei der Begriff der Großen Transformation, der einem Gutachten des Wissenschaftlichen Beirats der Bundesregierung Globale Umweltveränderungen (WBGU) entlehnt ist. Das Gutachten stellt die künftig notwendig werdenden tiefgreifenden Veränderungen von Wirtschaft und Gesellschaft in Richtung Nachhaltigkeit heraus und beschreibt sie als Große Transformation. Hiernach manifestieren sich gesellschaftliche Umbrüche auch im Raum, sodass raumrelevante Veränderungen als räumliche Transformationen gefasst werden können. Unklar bleibt jedoch, was im Detail unter Prozessen räumlicher Transformation zu verstehen ist und in welchen Erscheinungsformen sie auftreten. Vor dem Hintergrund dieses Forschungsbedarfes widmet sich der Forschungsbericht konkreten Fragestellungen der Erforschung und Gestaltung räumlicher Transformationsprozesse. Ziel ist es, das weitgehend ungeordnete Wissen zu Prozessen der räumlichen Transformation zu systematisieren und einen Beitrag zu einem gemeinsamen Begriffsverständnis zu leisten, das eine

Grundlage für die weitergehende Erforschung und Steuerung dieser Prozesse sein kann Handbook of Cities and the Environment Kevin Archer, Kris Bezdecny, 2016-12-30 With an ever growing majority of the world's human population living in city spaces the relationship between cities and nature will be one of the key environmental issues of the 21st Century This book brings together a diverse set of authors to explore the various aspects of this relationship both theoretically and empirically Rather than considering cities as wholly separate from nature a running theme throughout the book is that cities and city dwellers should be characterized as intrinsic in the creation of specifically urban generated socio natures

Environmental Transformations Ernest N. Emenyonu, 2020 Investigates what literary strategies African writers adopt to convey the impact of climate transformation and environmental change This special issue examines the ways fiction and poetry engage with environmental consciousness and how African literary criticism addresses the implications of global environmental transformations Does environmentalist literature offer new possibilities for critical thinking about the future What constitutes environmentalist fiction and poetry What kind of texts themes and topics does climate writing include Does any text in which the environment features become available to environmentalist criticism In their engagement with the diverse genres themes and frameworks through which contemporary African writers address topics including urbanisation cross species communication nature and climate change contributors to this special issue help to define African environmental writing They look at the literary strategies adopted by creative writers to convey the impact of environmental transformation in narratives that are historically informed by a century of colonialism nationalist political activism urbanisation and postcolonial migration How does environmental literature intervene in these histories Can creative writers with their powerfully post human and cross species imaginations carry out the ethical work demanded by contemporary climate science From Tanure Ojaide's and Helon Habila's attention to environmental decimation in the Niger Delta through to Nnedi Okorafor's and Kofi Anyidoho's imaginative cross species encounters the special issue asks how literature mediates the specificities of climate change in an era of global capitalism and technological transformation and what the limits of creative writing and literary criticism are as tools for discussing environmental issues This volume also includes a Literary Supplement Guest Editors Cajetan Iheka Associate Professor of English Yale University and Stephanie Newell Professor of English Yale University Series Editor Ernest N Emenyonu Professor of Africana Studies at the University of Michigan Flint Reviews Editor Obi Nwakanma Fellow Department of English University of Central Florida Landscapes of the

Anthropocene with Google Earth Andrew Goudie, 2023-12-06 This book considers the meaning of the term considers the value and characteristics of Google Earth and discusses the main driving forces of landscape change Google Earth provides a means whereby one can identify changes in the landscapes of Earth over recent decades This has been a time of great human activity and landscapes have been transformed as a result of such factors as land use and land cover change climate change the intensive harnessing of new energy sources population pressures and globalization Many geologists now believe that the whole Earth System is being changed and that there is thus a need to introduce the concept of the Anthropocene It then looks at specific landscape types including rivers coasts lakes deserts tundra and glaciers Environmental Transformations and Cultural Responses Eveline Dürr, Arno Pascht, 2017-03-15 This book explores the various ways in which different communities and peoples in Oceania respond to and engage with recent environmental challenges and concurrent socio political reconfigurations Based on empirical research the book discusses topics such as belonging emotional attachment to land and new forms of environmental knowledge The theoretical framework of the book is inspired by current debates among diverse conceptualisations of the environment and thus of various ways of knowing making sense of and interacting with worlds With this focus in mind the book provides new insights into recent socio cultural and environmental dynamics in the Pacific

Dislocation: Awkward Spatial Transitions Philip Cooke, 2021-05-18 Today the world is in the most serious turmoil it has experienced for many centuries These multiple crises arise from the fundamental mistreatment by capitalist competition of the carrying capacity of the planet Even before coronavirus evidently morbid symptoms of over development led many spatial planners to write of the threat of a new Dark Age Many advocated a return to policy decentralisation as the Covid 19 crisis demonstrated once again the failure of global controller mindsets to manage complex systems successfully Dislocation Awkward Spatial Transitions is a critical exploration of where spatial development processes and rules have gone wrong across many economies The chapters lay out which mindsets have been responsible for this and gives pointers to new practices that aim to ameliorate the effects of past failings In the first nine chapters a mapping of key elements of the prevailing omni crisis are summarised These range from an exegesis of the Anthropocene the rise of populism the transition to neoliberalist anti planning and migration as planning issues with pleas for evolutionary change in spatial policy and process dynamics Finally a group of chapters explores the flailing as territorial governances tried to plot the rise of creative cities 4 0 era industry and services and in the built form the role of starchitects in city renewal In the last part attention is devoted to territorial innovation knowledge recombination sustainable mobility and finally green entrepreneurship as necessary elements of a post coronavirus climate change mitigation and sustainable mobility set of survival strategies The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal European Planning Studies

Borges, 2018-12-07

This book explores the increasing concern over the extent to which those suffering from forced cross border displacement as a result of environmental change are protected under international human rights law Formally they are not entitled to admission or stay in a third state country a situation that has been identified as an international legal protection gap The book seeks to provide answers to two basic questions whether and to what extent existing international law protects cross border environmental displacement and whether and how existing formalized regional complementary protection standards can interpretively solidify and conceptualize protection for cross border environmental displacement The discussion outlines that the protection of the human person is not only an ex post facto obligation of states but must be increasingly seen as an ex ante one The analysis further suggests that the European Union regionally orientated protection regime can help states to consolidate an evolving protection paradigm of proactive and reactive measures being erected at the international level It can also narrow the identified legal protection gaps In so doing it helps states to reconceptualise protection as a holistic and dynamic enterprise This book will be of great interest to academics in law political science and human rights policy makers and civil society organisations both at national and international level Coping with Global Environmental Change,

The Routledge Handbook of Environmental History Emily O'Gorman, William San Martín, Mark Carey, Sandra Swart, 2023-12-06 The Routledge Handbook of Environmental History presents a cutting edge overview of the dynamic and ever expanding field of environmental history. It addresses recent transformations in the field and responses to shifting scholarly, political and environmental landscapes. The handbook fully and critically engages with recent exciting changes, contextualizes them within longer term shifts in the field and charts potential new directions for study. It focuses on five key areas: Theories and concepts related to changing considerations of social justice including postcolonial, antiracist and feminist approaches and the field's growing emphasis on multiple human voices and agencies. The roles of non humans and the more than human in the telling of environmental histories from animals and plants to insects as vectors of disease and the influences of water and ice. The changing theoretical approaches and the influence of concepts in related areas such as animal and discard studies. How changes in theories and concepts are shaping methods in environmental history and shifting approaches to traditional sources like archives and oral histories as well as experiments by practitioners with new methods and sources. Responses to a range of current complex problems such as climate change and how environmental historians can best help mitigate and resolve these problems. Diverse ways in which environmental historians disseminate their research within and beyond academia including new modes of research dissemination teaching and engagements with stakeholders and the policy arena This is an important resource for environmental historians researchers and students in the related fields of political ecology environmental studies natural resources management and environmental planning Chapters 9 10 and 26 of this book are freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Whole Earth Thinking and Planetary Coexistence Sam Mickey, 2015-07-16 Like never before in history humans are becoming increasingly interconnected with one another and with the other inhabitants and habitats of Earth There are numerous signs of planetary interrelations from social media and international trade to genetic engineering and global climate change The scientific study of interrelations between organisms and environments Ecology is uniquely capable of addressing the complex challenges that characterize our era of planetary coexistence Whole Earth Thinking and Planetary Coexistence focuses on newly emerging approaches to ecology that cross the disciplinary boundaries of sciences and humanities with the aim of responding to the challenges facing the current era of planetary interconnectedness It introduces concepts that draw out a creative contrast between religious and secular approaches to the integration of sciences and humanities with religious approaches represented by the geologist Thomas Berry and the whole Earth thinking of Stephanie Kaza and Gary Snyder and the more secular approaches represented by the geophilosophy of poststructuralist theorists Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari This book will introduce concepts engaging with the ecological challenges of planetary coexistence to students and professionals in fields of environmental studies philosophy and religious studies

Tourism Resilience and Adaptation to Environmental Change Alan A. Lew, Joseph M. Cheer, 2017-07-31 In recent years resilience theory has come to occupy the core of our understanding and management of the adaptive capacity of people and places in complex social and environmental systems Despite this tourism scholars have been slow to adopt resilience concepts at a time when the emergence of new frameworks and applications is pressing Drawing on original empirical and theoretical insights in resilience thinking this book explores how tourism communities and economies respond to environmental changes both fast natural hazard disasters and slow incremental shifts It explores how tourism places adapt change and sometimes transform or not in relation to their environmental context with an awareness of intersection with societal dynamics and links to political economic and social drivers of change Contributions draw on empirical research conducted in a range of international settings including indigenous communities to explore the complexity and gradations of environmental change encounters and resilience planning responses in a range of tourism contexts As the first book to specifically focus on environmental change from a resilience perspective this timely and original work makes a critical contribution to tourism studies tourism management and environmental geography as well as environmental sciences and development studies
