The Excavations at Ismant al-Kharab Gillian E Bowen, 2024-02-29 The adoption of Christianity by the Egyptian populace was well underway by the late third century but evidence for its presence in the archaeological record from the Nile valley is sparse This is due in part to the loss of ancient settlement sites beneath modern cultivation By comparison Ismant al Kharab ancient Kellis in Dakhleh Oasis was abandoned at the end of the fourth century and many of its structures survive intact The villagers moreover left behind a wealth of artefacts and documentation By the late third century some had converted to Christianity and by the early fourth century three churches were built to accommodate their growing numbers The churches afford an unparalleled window into three ecclesiastical complexes that served a single village The Large East Church moreover is the earliest surviving example of a purpose built basilica in Egypt known thus far It provides a better understanding of the development of Egyptian church architecture and has forced a reappraisal of the dates of certain features that were previously attributed to the fifth century The community established three burial grounds Kellis 2 with an estimated 3 500 4 000 graves a funerary church and associated graveyard and in a reused monumental mausoleum Christian cemeteries are known throughout North Africa

Europe and Britain but in Egypt few are published in anything but a cursory manner At Kellis 800 graves have been excavated the earliest burials date to the late third century confirming the evidence of an early conversion by some villagers and its rapid expansion thereafter This volume provides the first detailed publication of the churches and Christian burial grounds It incorporates a discussion of the spread of Christianity in Egypt's Southern Oasis drawing upon data from the rich textual documentation from the site The material culture is presented in detail especially the extensive collection of ceramics glass and coins

Syene III. Untersuchungen zur römischen Keramik und weiteren Funden aus Syene / Assuan (1.-7. Jahrhundert AD). Dakhleh Oasis and the Western Desert of Egypt under the Ptolemies James C. R. Gill, 2016-07-08 Through an analysis of recently discovered Ptolemaic pottery from Mut al Kharab as well as a reexamination of pottery collected by the Dakhleh Oasis Project during the survey of the oasis from 1978 1987 this book challenges the common perception that Dakhleh Oasis experienced a sudden increase in agricultural exploitation and a dramatic rise in population during the Roman Period It argues that such changes had already begun to take place during the Ptolemaic Period likely as the result of a deliberate strategy directed toward this region by the Ptolemies This book focuses on the ceramic remains in order to determine the extent of Ptolemaic settlement in the oases and to offer new insights into the nature of this settlement It presents a corpus of Ptolemaic pottery and a catalogue of Ptolemaic sites from Dakhleh Oasis It also presents a survey of Ptolemaic evidence from the oases of Kharga Farafra Bahariya and Siwa It thus represents the first major synthesis of Ptolemaic Period activity in the Egyptian Western Desert

Africa and into Southeastern Europe for more than 1 300 years Through a new interdisciplinary research methodology Ancestorology a taxonomy of Western cultural and visual productions of history are juxtaposed with the social stratifications of the African Diaspora to arrive at a new interpretation of the historical narrative Decolonizing Arts Based Methodologies Researching the African Diaspora provokes critical analytical thought between the historical narrative and current public discourse in Western societies where people of African descent exist The importance of this work begins the process of unlearning Western ways of knowing and seeing through hegemonic productions of knowledge and by assigning new values to humanity's collective memory

Triangular Landscapes Katherine Blouin, 2014 Between the Roman annexation of Egypt and the Arab period the Nile Delta went from consisting of seven branches to two namely the current Rosetta and Damietta branches For historians this may look like a slow process but on a geomorphological scale it is a rather fast one How did it happen How did human action contribute to the phenomenon Why did it start around the Roman period And how did it impact on ancient Deltaic communities This volume reflects on these questions by focusing on a district of the north eastern Delta called the Mendesian Nome The Mendesian Nome is one of the very few Deltaic zones documented by a significant number of papyri To date this documentation has never been subject to a comprehensive study Yet it provides us with a wealth of information on the region's landscape administrative geography and agrarian economy Starting from these papyri and from all available evidence this volume investigates the complex networks of relationships between Mendesian environments socio economic dynamics and agro fiscal policies Ultimately it poses the question of the otherness of the Nile Delta within Egypt and more broadly the Roman Empire Section I sets the broader hydrological documentary and historical contexts from which the Roman period Mendesian evidence stem Section II is dedicated to the reconstruction of the Mendesian landscape while section III examines the strategies of diversification and the modes of valorization of marginal land attested in the nome Finally section IV analyses the socio environmental crisis that affected the nome in the second half of the second century AD
