Studies in Indian English Fiction and Poetry Amar Nath Prasad, U. S. Rukhaiyar, 2003

Transcultural English Studies Frank Schulze-Engler, Sissy Helff, 2009

What is most strikingly new about the transcultural is its sudden ubiquity Following in the wake of previous concepts in cultural and literary studies such as creolization hybridity and syncretism and signalling a family relationship to terms such as transnationality translocality and transmigration transcultural terminology has unobtrusively but powerfully edged its way into contemporary theoretical and critical discourse The four sections of this volume denote major areas where transcultural questions and problematics have come to the fore theories of culture and literature that have sought to account for the complexity of culture in a world increasingly characterized by globalization transnationalization and interdependence realities of individual and collective life worlds shaped by the ubiquity of phenomena and experiences relating to transnational connections and the blurring of cultural boundaries fictions in literature and other media that explore these realities negotiate the fuzzy edges of ethnic or national cultures and participate in the creation of transnational public spheres as well as transcultural imaginations and memories and finally pedagogy and didactics where earlier models of teaching other cultures are faced with the challenge of coming to terms with cultural complexity both in what is being taught and in the people it is taught to and where target cultures have become elusive The idea of locating culture and literature exclusively in the context of ethnicities or nations is rapidly losing plausibility throughout an English speaking world that has long since been multi rather than monolingual Exploring the prospects and contours of Transcultural English Studies thus reflects a set of common challenges and predicaments that in recent years have increasingly moved centre stage not only in the New Literatures in English but also in British and American studies

The Post-colonial Space Nandini Sahu, 2007 The 1980s and after has created a typical post modern anxiety with the advent of Salman Rushdie as an influential diaspora writer This book is conceptualized around a series of topics like post modern anxiety identity politics national and self definition the problem of exile and diaspora and an interest to examine the way Indian English literature has established itself and set up as a separate discipline While the bright and brilliant promises about Indian English literature rejuvenate us some pertinent questions hang above us related to our identity historiography and the political and national affiliation of a writer Does the absence of a national identity affect the tone of a creative writer and the mindset of his readers as well Does the post colonial space invite and initiate the Indian English writers and the diaspora writers to take their self and national identity as the metaphor of their creativity How do they define and justify themselves What do they mean by Indianness Nation and Narration Women Issues Subaltern Conditions Nativism Post Colonialism Post Modernism and Essentialism What are their literary and extra literary concerns Do they succeed in giving a clear image to the indigenous culture and the narrative traditions of India What linguistic and stylistic innovations are being introduced by the post colonial writers This book is a humble attempt to point out some of these issues by the editor and the contributors The present analytical study will prove an ideal reference book to students researchers and teachers of Indian English literature
