Norman L. Geisler, 2005-07-06 An academically respectable description and evaluation of secular humanism is available at last The diversity within humanism receives full recognition in this book as does the fact that not everything about humanism is bad from a Christian point of view Indeed the author continues there are many emphases within humanism that are compatible with Christian beliefs a thesis to which he devotes an entire chapter Part 1 summarizes in turn eight prominent forms of humanism Huxley's evolutionism Skinner's behaviorism Sartre's existentialism Dewey's pragmatism Marxism Rand's egocentrism Lamont's culturalism and the coalitional form present in the humanist declaration and manifestoes Emerging from these chapters are both the differences between humanists and the consensus that binds them together It is this humanistic consensus writes the author that most radically conflicts with Christian beliefs and that is the number one problem in the United States today After the chapter on the helpful emphases of secular humanism part 2 details this movement's comparative inferiority internal inconsistencies religious inadequacies and philosophical insufficiencies. The final chapter demonstrates that while Christianity is consistent with the central principles of science philosophy epistemology and ethics humanism is not There is no rational justification the author concludes for being a humanist
