Abstract:

Being an Indian Brahmin, uprooted from the land of his ancestors, Vidiadhar Suraj Prasad Naipaul has a complex personality. His grandfather was migrated to Trinidad from India as an indentured labourer. The huge Diaspora from China, India and other countries as indenture labourer, raises the obvious question of their national and political identity in the Caribbean island when they achieve independence. This paper deals with the cultural dislocation and identity crisis of these diasporic people, and identifies the primordial historical background of the Caribbean people, the wave of modern western culture and the imbalance hybridization of cultures that make them 'mimic' men and alienates them from their origins. This paper also locates the ambivalent position of Naipaul regarding 'mimicry'. He believes in the hollowness of 'mimic man' who lost their originality, creativity and thinking ability by imitating the colonial authority, again he believes that the mimicry of the colonial language by the postcolonial writers is a way of resistance to colonial authority. This paper is a brief endeavor to articulate all these issues based on Naipaul's two novels- A House for Mr. Biswas (1969) and The Mimic Men (1967).

Keywords: Hybridity, Mimicry, Culture and Identity

Introduction:

In an interview given to Ronald Bryden on 22 March 1973, Naipaul remarked:

All of my work is really one. I am really writing one big book. I come to the conclusion that, considering the nature of society I come from, considering the nature of the world I have stepped into and the world I have to look at I could not be a professional novelist in the old sense...(quoted in Ray 2002:(V))

V.S. Naipaul is a natural novelist. He had decided quite early in his life to take the vocation of a writer as his religion like Stephen Dedalus (see Joyce, A Portrait). For this, most of his books reflect his very authentic personal experience of an uprooted Caribbean adrift in the waves of multiculturalism. He grasps for identity, a cultural home, a place of his own; but stoops to the status of 'mimic man'. The pain and displacement of his own history enables him to treat his own alienation as an instance of the question for identity and location of culture of the colonial Caribbean as well as the post-colonial society.

Naipaul focuses on the disorientation of 'culture' and 'identity' of the Caribbean people. The present day population of that area consists of many racial groups who came to the island as immigrants. In the world of cultural confusions, colonial Caribbean people without any roots in the island are more vulnerable to exploitation than those colonial societies who have their own 'stable' indigenous culture. In this area, the hybridization of different cultures often results in the mimicry of the colonial power.

An Analysis of Homi K. Bhabha's The Location of Culture Stephen Fay,Liam

Haydon,2017-07-05 Homi K Bhabha s 1994 The Location of Culture is one of the founding texts of the branch of literary theory called postcolonialism While postcolonialism has many strands at its heart lies the question of interpreting and understanding encounters between the western colonial powers and the nations across the globe that they colonized Colonization was not just an economic military or political process but one that radically affected culture and identity across the world It is a field in which interpretation comes to the fore and much of its force depends on addressing the complex legacy of colonial encounters by careful sustained attention to the meaning of the traces that they left on colonized cultures What Bhabha s writing like so much postcolonial thought shows is that the arts of clarification and definition that underpin good interpretation are rarely the same as simplification Indeed good interpretative clarification is often about pointing out and dividing the different kinds of complexity at play in a single process or term For Bhabha the object is identity itself as expressed in the ideas colonial powers had about themselves In his interpretation what at first seems to be the coherent set of ideas behind colonialism soon breaks down into a complex mass of shifting stances yielding something much closer to postcolonial thought than a first glance at his sometimes dauntingly complex suggests Reconstructing Hybridity Joel Kuortti,Jopi Nyman,2007 This interdisciplinary collection of critical articles seeks to reassess the concept of hybridity and its relevance to post colonial theory and literature The challenging articles written by internationally acclaimed scholars discuss the usefulness of the term in relation to such questions as citizenship whiteness studies and transnational identity politics In addition to developing theories of hybridity the articles in this volume deal with the role of hybridity in a variety of literary and cultural phenomena in geographical settings ranging from the Pacific to native North America The collection pays particular attention to questions of hybridity migrancy and diaspora

Hybridity in the Literature of Medieval England Rosanne P. Gasse, 2023-07-04 Hybridity in the Literature of Medieval England offers a wide ranging exploration of hybridity in medieval English literature Anxiety about hybridity surfaces in characters of mixed ethnic identity in the romances But anxiety is found also in the intersection of the natural and the supernatural and its site can be located inside the human body s unstable physical frame living and dead as much as in the cultural and social forces at work upon the human body politic at large Hybridity is unlike other constructs of difference in that while it is grounded in difference hybridity points toward sameness The four types of hybridity studied in medieval English literature show that hybridity can resolve the problems caused by difference Understanding medieval hybridity can help us to deal with our own contemporary struggles with the mixtures of our own lives and societies
