Urban Land Acquisition and Involuntary Resettlement Vincent Roquet, Luciano Bornholdt, Karen Sirker, Jelena Lukic, 2017-03-01 Expansion and development of urban areas require acquisition of land which in turn often requires physical relocation of people who own or occupy this land Land acquisition and resettlement may also be required to improve the lives of the more than 1 billion people who currently live in slums around the world most of them in developing countries Therefore any effort to embark on significant sustainable urban development needs to ensure that there are adequate processes for land acquisition and so that resettlement does not become a constraint to much needed urban development Planners policy makers and social scientists can try to implement urban development programs in a way that make people who lose their land houses or livelihoods become equal partners in the development process The combination of the high price of urban land presence of creative individuals in close proximity in urban areas and the ability of urban space to generate innovative solutions can help convert urban resettlement into a development opportunity for all The report illustrates how urban resettlement can become a development opportunity The Mumbai example shows how the private sector can play a key role to unleash the potential created by high value land to provide sustainable housing solutions to those adversely affected at no cost to the government or the resettlers Examples from Morocco and Pakistan show how well designed and implemented citizen driven resettlement can result in enhanced skills and livelihoods and can promote overall sustainable urban development The Mauritania example demonstrates how collective approaches with strong community participation can help address difficult challenges related to housing The Brazil case shows how resettlement practices with demonstrated strongly positive outcomes and contributions to urban development can influence governments to incorporate them into their own laws and regulations helping millions of affected people to benefit from them Innovating Strategies and Solutions for Urban Performance and Regeneration Cristina Piselli, Haşim Altan, Osman Balaban, Peleg Kremer, 2022-07-01 This book focuses on enhancing urban regeneration performance and strategies that pave the way toward sustainable urban development models and solutions The book at hand thoroughly examines the latest studies on the regeneration of urban areas and attempts at alleviating the negative impacts associated with high population density and urban heat effects It gathers contributions that combine theoretical reflections and international case studies on urban regeneration and transformation with the single goal of tackling existing social and economic imbalances and developing new solutions The primary audience of this book will be from the field of architecture and urban planning offering new insights on how to address the myriad of problems that our cities are facing Assessing the Social Impact of Development Projects Hari Mohan Mathur, 2015-12-16 This book shows how social impact assessment SIA which emerged barely five decades ago as a way to anticipate and manage potentially negative social impacts of building dams power stations urban infrastructure highways industries mining and other development projects is now widely in use as a planning tool especially in developed
